Buy Furs Now.
Thanksgiving Wisdom.
20,000 Pearls, or Wives.
Women Must Weep.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—
(Copyright, 1927).

ABNORMALLY hot weather interferes with sale of furs, overcoats and other "cold weather goods." It's bad for business, but the wise citizen finds it good for his pocketbook. It WON'T BE HOT ALL WINTER. Buy overcoats and furs NOW and save money. All merchants are reducing prices.

IN his Thanksgiving proclamation Gov. Smith, of New York, advises the people "to pray for wisdom in USING the gifts of Providence," and that is the best Thanksgiving advice in a long time. It is easy in this prosperous country to acquire wealth, not so easy to use it wisely, for the good of others, and the good of your soul.

AN expert from Sweden says jewels formerly owned by Turkish sultan are earth's most magnificent. They include a throne of pure gold, covered with 20,000 Oriental pearls." That sounds grand, but really isn't. The man sitting on the 20,000 pearls was nothing but a dull Turk, always afraid some one would poison him or steal his wives.

Twenty thousand more Circassian wives would have done him as much good as the 20,000 Oriental pearls, and that isn't saying much. It isn't what you have, but what you do with it that counts.

BIRTH control and publishing information about it are approved by Britain's "National Council of Public Morals."

Theoretically, women should have the right to decide how many children they will have.

But it is well that understanding of birth control has been postponed. It might have prevented the arrival of Napoleon and Carlyle, and surely would have prevented the arrival of Caruso, a nineteenth child.

The rule "men must work, and women must weep," seems fair enough. But women have had more than their share of weeping.

REPORTS of Trotsky's assassination were not convincingly contradicted yesterday.

His killing would be base ingratitude for his energy that kept the Allies at bay when they decided to "squelch" Bolshevism.

Such killings are usual things in revolutions. Robespierre killed Danton, greatest French leader. Then Robespierre went to the guillotine with a broken jaw, and Charlotte Corday murdered Marat in his bathtub. Then came Napoleon. You may see something like that in Russia.

AN army of British unemployed headed for London, marched through a crowd of men and women in pink coats hunting the fox, with hounds to help. Men galloping over the fields in bright pink, for pleasure, contrasted sharply with marchers leaving hungry children at home.

Voltaire said of the English that they were like their beer, froth at top, dregs at the bottom, excellent in the middle. On this occasion some of the bottom and top met.

SCIENTISTS seeking "cold light," hope to find it in "atomic vibration," produced by shifting of the electrons in their orbits inside the atom. Planets in our solar system are electrons on a big scale. If they changed their orbits and collided, there would be plenty of light for a moment, but not light without heat.

OF one thing, you may be sure, the human brain doesn't produce any light worth while, in education, art or science, without much heat and genuine combustion. You must, as Dante said, "Work as nature works, in fire," or your work amounts to little.

ENGINEERS from everywhere watched the Shipping Board's freighter, Mercer, experimenting yesterday with pulverized coal for fuel. All business men that burn coal, and especially all city officials, are interested.

Fires from pulverized coal cut cost and produce no smoke.

A GREAT automobile combination is rumored, with the able Mr. Durant at the head of it, involving the sum of $200,000,000.

Once that would have sounded impressive, but it is only a little more than the annual dividend of General Motors at the present rate. The bigger the unit, the better for business. It is hard for little fish to live in these waters without the help of mass advertising, which they can't well afford.

EUROPE believes that Germany, Austria and Hungary will be united in one country, to which Austria can now contribute only a big city, with a little front yard around it.

The French do not object seriously. Europe's nations have learned that the best they can get from war is fearful calamity, and are actually inclined to try friendly concessions and co-operation.

DEAD IN BLAST 26

While the search for additional bodies of victims of the Equitable Gas Company gas container blast continued today, A. W. Robertson, president of the company, returned to the city and announced definitely that the wrecked tanks would not be rebuilt. He declared that this is a voluntary action on the part of the Equitable's officers.

Mr. Robertson's statement was made immediately after he had visited the scene of the explosion, where this morning rescuers had determined that the number of dead stood at 26 as a result of Monday's blast, which had sent death and destruction for

Pardon for J. A. Bell Attacked

HARRISBURG, Nov. 16.—The State Board of Pardons was asked today to grant a pardon to John A. Bell, of Pittsburgh, former millionaire and banker, who is serving a 6½-year sentence in Allegheny county on charges of embezzlement. The board was urged by Bell's counsel to grant him clemency because the Pardon Board was the only body with power to grant a parole.

When O. K. Eaton, Bell's attorney, said the pardon board was the only body to give a parole, Attorney General Baldridge and Lieut. Gov. James disagreed with him.

"Do you maintain that because he is in the hospital the parole law does not apply in this case?" the Attorney General asked.

"Exactly," replied Eaton.

The Attorney General said that

CALLES' AMBASSADOR IN GUATEMALA TOLD TO AID SACASA CAUSE

Hearst Papers Reveal Further Documentary Proof of Conspiracy in Neighbor Republic to Thwart Our Aims and Policies on This Continent.

By JOHN PAGE
(Copyright, 1927, by Washington Herald.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—A golden flood of Mexican pesos flowing into Central America by millions for the purpose of installing an anti-American Government in Nicaragua is shown and proved with official Mexican Government documents published by The Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst papers today.

President Calles, elated by his success in organizing a "Liberal" revolutionary movement in Nicaragua through methods exposed by the Hearst papers yesterday, and his further success in thwarting American efforts to restore peace in that war-torn country, strained Mexico's slender resources almost to the breaking point to supply his Nicaraguan associates with rifles, cartridges and gold.

Mexican money also was spent unsparingly in a world-wide propaganda campaign in favor of the Liberal movement in Nicaragua, which was intended to prevent American construction of the proposed transcontinental canal, remove the country from the American sphere of influence, and attach it as a tail to the Bolshevik kite being flown by Mexico.

President Coolidge, after some hesitation due to incomplete information as to the origin of the Liberal revolt and its real significance, had decided it must not succeed, and his decision was drawing the fire of radical and pro-Mexican elements everywhere in the world. Wherever Mexican money was needed to intensify the fire, it was forthcoming.

The seat of the Nicaraguan Liberal revolutionary government was established by its titular head, Dr. Juan Bautista Sacasa, at Puerto Cazezas, on the northern Atlantic coast of that country, in the first week of December, 1926.

President Calles, immediately after receiving notice of this event, issued an order on the Mexican Treasury Department for a hundred thousand pesos, to be delivered to Alfonzo Craviotto, the Mexican Ambassador to Guatemala. The original order, signed by Calles himself, is in the possession of

$50,000 to Heckle Coolidge

The Sun-Telegraph publishes today the third of the series of articles revealing the anti-American activities of the Calles administration in Mexico. This article, using for the purpose official Mexican documents obtained from the secret files of President Calles, shows:

That much of the foreign criticism of the American government's policy in Nicaragua was bought and paid for by President Calles.

That on December 6, 1926, Calles ordered his treasury department to give $50,000 to the Mexican ambassador to Guatemala, Senor Alfonso Craviotto, for that purpose.

That on February 3 of this year Calles ordered a million dollars sent to Craviotto for the purpose of financing the Nicaraguan insurrection.

The documents published today, photographically and textually, begin to explain the unprecedented wave of criticism, at home and abroad, of President Coolidge's Nicaraguan policy. This criticism perplexed our Chief Executive and hampered him in doing the thing he knew must be done if American interests were to be guarded and American obligations to weaker nations fulfilled.

The revelations contained in the fourth article of this series, to be published in the Sun-Telegraph tomorrow, will be of grave interest to those who have feared the spread of Bolshevism on the American continent.

the Hearst papers and appears in fac-simile elsewhere in The Sun-Telegraph.

The purpose for which the money was intended will be apparent from the text of the order. It follows:

To the Citizen Secretary of the Treasury and Public Credit.

You will please direct the Treasurer General of the Nation to issue a pay-warrant in favor of Citizen Alfonzo Cravioto, Ambassador of Mexico in Guatemala, for the sum of 100,000 pesos ($50,000 U. S. gold) for expenses for newspaper propaganda in favor of Mexico.

You will please transfer this money through the Bank of Mexico.

Order at the same time that this warrant be charged to secret expenditures of the Department of Foreign Relations, from the current budget.

(Hand-written)

(Editor's note: In the foregoing and other documents published in this series the use of the word "Citizen" will be noted. This is radical nomenclature, first used during the French Revolution, and corresponds to the Communist "Comrade." It has been used in Mexican official documents for several years.

The motto "SUFRAGIO EFECTIVO NO-REELECCION" was first used by the Mexican President Francisco Madero, who revolted successfully against Porfirio Diaz, many times President of Mexico, with that slogan as his war cry. Translated, it means: "Effective Suffrage and no re-election of Presidents." It is a noble ideal for which many Mexicans have died, vainly, for suffrage never has been effective in Mexico and the Mexican Constitution has been amended by the Calles Administration so as specifically to permit the reelection of Presidents. The motto is still used on Mexican official documents.)

This sum of money, therefore, was to be applied to "newspaper propaganda," and to be charged to "secret expenditures" of the Department of Foreign Relations. Calles was trying to hide from the world and even from his own people his costly efforts to subsidize the press of Central America and purchase its support of Dr. Sacasa's "Made in Mexico" Nicaraguan Government.

At just that time certain Central American papers were virtually a unit in praising the Sacasa Government and demanding its immediate recognition by their own countries, and in condemning the existing Nicaraguan Government. Almost unitedly they charged the United States with upholding the "vicious" Conservative Government against the will of the Nicaraguan people, and absolved Mexico from any connection with the Sacasa movement.

This fifty thousand dollars lasted Ambassador Cravioto just nine days. On December 15 he asked for and received twenty-five thousand dollars more for the same purpose. Again we have the original order on the Treasury Department signed by President Calles, reproduced in fac-simile elsewhere in these columns together with its English translation. It follows, textually:

To the Citizen Secretary of the Treasury and Public Credit.

You will please direct the Citizen Treasurer General of the Nation to order the transfer of the sum of 50,000 pesos, national gold ($25,000), through the Bank of Mexico and its branch in Zuchiate, to the Citizen Ambassador of Mexico in Guatemala, Alfonzo Cravioto, the said sum to be applied to propaganda expenses in favor of Mexico.

You will charge this item to special expenditures of the Department of Foreign Relations.

Alfonzo Cravioto is Mexico's first Ambassador to Guatemala and for years has been known as one of Mexico's ablest educators and writers. He was sent to Guatemala for the definite purpose of winning that country to an anti-American understanding with Mexico.

Cravioto's articles in Guatemalan papers, his eloquent speeches and the social and political connections he quickly formed in Guatemala City, all contributed to make him a formidable rival of Arthur H. Geissler, the American Minister and dean of the diplomats there. It was then the Mexican Government raised its Guatemalan legation to the status of an embassy and Minister Cravioto became Ambassador Cravioto, with social and diplomatic precedence over the American Minister, Mr. Geissler.

When the Mexican Government undertook to establish a puppet government in Nicaragua, Ambassador Cravioto was one of the most enthusiastic supporters of the scheme. He took general charge of Mexican activities in Central America, and through his hands passed much of the money contributed by Mexico to keep the Liberal fires burning in Nicaragua. While many large sums of money are known to have been given him for this purpose by Calles, just one will be cited in this article. It must not be confused with the smaller payments for anti-American propaganda.

On February 3 of this year, when the Liberal forces were in possession of all Eastern Nicaragua except the "neutral zones" held by American Marines, President Calles ordered his Treasury Department to furnish Cravioto with two million pesos (a million dollars, approximately).

This money was ordered sent in gold by the Bank of Mexico, with all possible safeguards, and to be charged to "secret expenditures of the Executive." The money was shipped to Zuchiate, on the Guatemalan frontier, heavily guarded by federal soldiers, on February 9. From there it was transferred to Guatemala City, where it was used by Ambassador Cravioto in a vain effort to consolidate the advantages won by the Liberals and insure their final success.

The State Department, by then, was fully aware of what was going on and, though still a little weak on documentary proof of Mexico's plans, was resolved to prevent their consummation at all hazards.

The Hearst papers, again in this instance, have the original of the Calles order relating to this million dollar payment.

It is reproduced photographically elsewhere in today's Sun-Telegraph.

The English text of the Calles order follows:

To the Citizen Secretary of the Treasury and Public Credit.

You will please direct the Citizen Treasurer General of the Nation to issue orders to the Bank of Mexico, S. A., to deposit through the proper channels and with the accustomed safeguards, the sum of two million pesos ($1,000,000) national gold, to the order of the Citizen Ambassador of Mexico in Guatemala, Alfonzo Cravioto.

Charge this item to Secret Expenditures of the Executive, issuing the necessary orders so that this may be carried into effect with the required reserve.

This million dollars was used for the specific purpose of making war on a weaker country, tried by Calles and found guilty of the double crime of "Conservatism" and "pro-Americanism." Smaller sums were employed, from time to time, not only to influence newspapers, but to send Latin-American and Russian agitators into Guatemala City and other strategic points. Their specific missions varied, but were always in some way connected with the general Bolshevik scheme.

BLAST TOLL RISES TO 26

blocks around the blasted tanks. The rescue work today is carried on in the ruins of the Pittsburgh Clay Pot Company, where more bodies are expected to be found.

It was declared by Mr. Robertson that recent researches disclosed that there is no longer any great necessity for storage of natural gas, and that other means will be found for reducing the pressure in the mains supplying consumers.

COUNCIL AGAINST TANKS

Pittsburgh City Council, meeting as the finance committee yesterday, decided that the gas company would not be permitted to proceed with reconstruction until the policy allowing gas tanks within the city limits is decided.

Mr. Robertson said that the question of liability of the company had not been determined, but added that the company will follow the same practice with any liability that might arise out of this accident as it does in other cases of liability. He said that the company was conducting a rigid investigation as to the cause of the accident. Members of the investigating committee are not connected with the gas operations, he said, and therefore will be unbiased in their decision.

The bodies of the two men were identified today as workmen employed in the Pittsburgh Clay Pot Company. A checkup on the payroll of the company shows that there are still a score of more of that firm unaccounted for and some of them are believed to be in the debris, from which water is still being pumped.

Searchers today found the work check issued to Steve Youkevich, one of the missing employes of the clay pot company, and 50 cents in change in the wreckage of the company's plant. It is believed that Youkevich perished.

A squad of city employes under the direction of Acting Director Charles M. Reppert of the Department of Public Works are engaged in tearing down all buildings that are declared unsafe.

NINE MORE MAY DIE

A canvass of hospitals today showed that nine on the injured list are in serious condition. Their names follow:

Allegheny General—William Boska, 2427 Westmawr street; Louis Domac, Troy Hill; William Bauers, 1 Goodwin street, Millvale; Mrs. Margaret Collins, 927 Farmey street, Walter Zehfuss, 502 Allegheny avenue; Louis Mene, 7202 Butler street.

Presbyterian — William Lamfried, 1700 Locust street, and Lawrence Powers.

St. John's—Pasquale Defalzio, 23 Vine street.

EXPERT HERE FOR PROBE

J. C. Allison, of Harrisburg, technical engineer for the Public Service Commission, arrived in Pittsburgh yesterday to investigate the blast for the state. Coroner W. J. McGregor said yesterday that no effort will be made to place the blame for the blast until after the dead and missing have been accounted for.

A morgue ambulance was kept at the scene throughout the night and another at the morgue for emergency calls. Deputy coroners divided the work of remaining at the scene to care for the removal of bodies to the morgue, or being on duty in the morgue to receive persons searching for lost friends and relatives.

District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner stated yesterday that he expected to take no part in any probe into the explosion and that his only participation thus far has been to cooperate with the coroner in any way possible. Any developments of existing probes are matters for future consideration, the District Attorney said.

Many of the stricken families living in the wrecked area have been cared for by the Volunteers of America, who have furnished food and clothing and converted the day nursery and North Side Mission into sleeping quarters for the homeless. Members of the organization are serving coffee and doughnuts to the rescue workers.

Maj. Frank H. Wise announced last night that all other activities of the organization will be abandoned until the explosion situation is cleaned up. When injured women were taken to the hospitals shortly after the calamity, children accompanying them were taken to the Volunteers' nursery, where they were fed and watched by nurses until the mothers were able to reclaim them.

GANG FACES DAMAGE SUITS

Police Lieuts. Philip Marmo and John Schnurr and three patrolmen were suspended today by Supt. of Police P. P. Walsh on charges growing out of a "raid" conducted on Hotel Grise, Eleventh street, Saturday night.

The men, suspended on the technical charge of "conduct unbecoming an officer," will be given hearings before the Police Trial Board next Wednesday. They are accused of maliciously wrecking the hotel under the pretense of raiding it.

Oliver Grise and his wife, arrested during the "raid," were discharged by Magistrate A. D. Brandon, yesterday, who ordered the officers held for court. In addition to the charges preferred by Walsh today, the men face criminal and civil suits.

"The worst crime ever perpetrated here in the name of the law," was the way the "raid" was characterized by Magistrate Brandon in a letter to Director of Public Safety James M. Clark.

The damaged hotel has been inspected by many city and county officials, including several members of Council, who expressed themselves as determined to take drastic action against the officers who participated in the affair.

Viewed this morning, the interior of the hotel is a wreck. Every chair and table in the dining room is smashed, the coffee urn—punctured by blows of axes—is ready for the junk pile, the lunch counter is overturned and hacked, the range in the kitchen is ripped to pieces, every pot and pan is crushed and every dish and glass is broken.

A clock and most of the electric light globes appear to have been used as targets for milk and catsup bottles. The mirrors are smashed. The bar is overturned and chopped literally to pieces. Cartons of eggs, found in the basement, were smashed on the kitchen floor. Pictures were ripped from the wall and broken. An inkwell was thrown through a photograph of Grise while a blow from an axehandle finished a photograph of the late "Pop" Geers, idol of the matinee tracks.

Silver cups, trophies of matinee races, were pounded beyond recognition. The cash register was battered beyond repair.

The "raiders," employes of the hotel said today, after wrecking the first floor, turned to the basement, overturning two barrels of sauerkraut and one of apples.

Every officer concerned in the raid, if proven guilty, is declared to be liable for a share in the damage, which Grise fixes as at least $10,000. The two lieutenants are bonded for $1,000 each and the patrolmen for $600 each.

RED CROSS AIDS 500 FAMILIES

The American Red Cross, through its Pittsburgh chapter, is giving emergency relief to approximately 500 families in the devastated area of the North Side and is prepared to begin permanent rehabilitation for those actually in need, declared Robert E. Bondy, manager of the eastern area, National Red Cross, following a trip this morning through the wrecked Equitable Gas Company plant and adjoining districts with A. K. Oliver, chairman of the Pittsburgh chapter.

Mr. Bondy arrived in the city early this morning and following a short conference with Mr. Oliver and Edward A. Woods, chairman of the district relief committee, Red Cross, set out on a tour of inspection. Mr. Oliver and Mr. Bondy visited relief headquarters at 911 Ridge avenue, the Red Cross canteen where thousands of workmen have been served with food since Monday and the Red Cross first aid station at the scene of the blast.

"This is the second big city catastrophe where the Red Cross has been called in this year," Mr. Bondy declared, "and we at national headquarters are proud of the efficient way in which Mr. Oliver and Mr. Woods have stepped into the breach and directed the relief work. The public as well as city officials naturally turn to the Red Cross in an emergency and I think our people have done noble work here.

"Our work here is divided into two phases. The emergency relief is nearly over. That includes medical and nursing work, feeding, lodging and clothing. The second part of our job is permanent rehabilitation, the basis for which is to meet the needs of unfortunate individuals and not undertake to replace general loss. We aim to assist only those persons who are unable to help themselves in a case like this. This phase of the work includes clothing, replacing household goods and maintenance of families until the wage-earner is able to resume his duties.

"Yesterday 50 trained family workers began work in the district, making a survey of the needs of stricken families, and our headquarters in Ridge avenue is gathering information so we will be able to begin permanent work at once."

No special appeal for funds will be made for relief here, Mr. Bondy said, but many voluntary contributions are being received. This money is being spent in the field where it is most needed, he declared.

Mr. Bondy also directed attention to those desiring to help to the annual roll call now under way in the Pittsburgh Chapter. "People can help out in a very material way by enlisting in the Red Cross at once," he declared.

TOWNSHIP JOINS CITY IN 1928

Union township will become a part of the city on the first Monday in January next, under a decree handed down by Judge James R. Macfarlane in Quarter Sessions Court yesterday, on petition of Harry J. Thomas, counsel for the township. Electors of the township, by a vote of 484 to 115, approved the annexation at the general election.

Xmas Joy Aplenty for Birdhouse Hustlers

Checks for boy and girl salesmen of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Birdhouse Club, in the mail yesterday and today, are material proofs that there will be plenty of Christmas money in birdhouse members' pockets this year.

For a number of boys and girls, having had remarkable success in getting new readers for the Sun-Tele, having lined their pockets with greenbacks already—and are destined to get more.

The hustlers are not holding back any subscriptions they have sold but are cashing in and getting new blanks from J. M. Aylward, manager of the club. Then, starting out anew on the quest of the elusive half-dollars, those more ambitious among the members are getting remarkable results.

It is known by all the members that each New Reader subscription sold nets the salesman half a dollar. Some of the boys sold 10 subscriptions the first week, and some of the girls sold eight. The second week, untotaled completely yet, may produce some broken records.

The manager of the club advises that the salesmen write plainly on the subscription blanks, send in the blanks as soon as they are filled, and keep at the stunt.

ARREST WOMAN IN CUTTING PLANT RAID

Prohibition agents yesterday arrested a woman when they raided an alleged cutting plant at 3358 Fifth avenue. The raiders say they confiscated 15 cases of whisky, 25 gallons of alcohol and cutting equipment. Mrs. Elizabeth Seabright, 48, and Joe Levy, 49, of the Fifth avenue address and Harry Wassegman, 37, of 2329 Murray avenue, were arrested.

A.W.Mellon Here For Wedding Of Niece

WITHHOLDS THAW GIFT VERDICT

By Universal Service

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Federal Judge Coleman yesterday reserved decision after hearing testimony in an action by Mrs. Mary C. Thaw of Pittsburgh, widow of William Thaw and mother of Harry K. Thaw, to set aside a gift of $600,000 made by her in January, 1925, to her grandson, Lawrence Copley Thaw.

Mrs. Thaw, described by counsel as being now in feeble health, was represented by Senator David Reed of Pennsylvania, who charged Lawrence Thaw had unduly influenced his grandmother to make the gift.

MOTIVE "SINISTER"

Taking the witness stand, Thaw said he had been for some time connected with a New York brokerage firm, at a salary of $12,000 annually. He characterized the action as a selfish one, instigated, he charged, by Josiah Thaw, son of Mrs. Thaw and brother of Harry Thaw. The motive, he said, was sinister.

Thaw declared relatives were trying to thwart the generous motives and intentions of his grandmother and induce her to withdraw the gift she bestowed. Their purpose was to prevent lessening of their financial interest in the Thaw estate.

The broker said he had many conversations with Mrs. Thaw on the subject of her benefaction. She liked him, he related, because of his business ambition and because he was profitably employed. Her desire, expressed to him, was that he perpetuate the "honorable Thaw name."

Thaw said he had informed Mrs. Thaw of having $500,000 given by his own father, but told her he expected it would cost all that to enter the brokerage business. She urged that he keep this as a nest egg and shortly after that sold certain Standard Oil stocks, giving him the $600,000 thus obtained. The gift was made in 1925. Mrs. Thaw is now 83.

POLICEMAN IS CONVICTED FOR "THIRD DEGREE"

JURY FROWNS ON "DOG COLLAR" METHODS

"Dog collar" third degree methods were frowned upon by a jury in Criminal Court today which returned a verdict of guilty against Howard Whyles, former patrolman of Sewickley, tried on a charge of assault and battery.

Thomas Kent, Negro, 18, told the jury that Whyles and another policeman put a dog collar around his neck, attached a rope to the collar and pulled the rope over a pipe and kicked a chair from under him. "The lights went out and I grabbed the pipe," the Negro narrated. He was given the third degree, he said, to force a confession of complicity in a restaurant robbery last August.

Whyles denied the charges on the stand yesterday. He was dismissed by Sewickley council following airing of the Negro's complaints.

DEPOSITORS OPPOSE

while physically Bell was in the hospital, legally he is in jail.

At this point the Lieutenant Governor joined in the discussion and agreed with Eaton.

"Has there ever been an application for parole to the County Court before coming here?" he asked.

"No, I take the position that the parole act does not apply in this case," Eaton replied.

Counsel for the former banker agreed that his client was in a first-class hospital and that he was receiving good treatment, but that to recommit him to jail at his age of 72 years probably would bring on a third paralytic stroke and cause his death.

Opposition to the granting of the pardon was made by Homer N. Young, former special deputy attorney general, representing the depositors of the Carnegie Trust Company, Pittsburgh, of which institution Bell was the head.

WNFALL TRACED

[illegible] traced the financial transactions of Bell while he was president of the trust company, from its organization in 1901 until its failure in 1924. He declared that Bell received more than $1,500,000 from notes borrowed from the bank and also that he invested over $1,000,000 in the Carnegie Coal Company.

"Depositors were entitled to protection under the laws of this state and they did not get it from the banking department," Attorney General Baldrige asserted.

Depositors of the institution have been paid 10 per cent on the money they had in the bank when it failed, Young told the board, and he expressed doubt if they would get much more through further liquidation. The former special deputy attorney general, who investigated the case after the bank crashed, admitted upon inquiry by the board that Bell was not in the best physical condition and he agreed with the board that application should first be made to the county courts for parole instead of asking the pardon board for clemency.

Bell at one time was said to have assets of $10,000,000, Young said, and a few years later filed a petition in bankruptcy. He was a powerful figure in Western Pennsylvania business and financial interests and a few years ago was mentioned as a possible candidate for the United States Senate for the seat now occupied by David A. Reed.

He was convicted on February 1, 1926, on 12 counts of embezzlement and fraud. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $19,000 and serve six and a half years in the Allegheny County Jail. When the Carnegie Trust Company failed former Gov. Pinchot himself conducted a special investigation of the matter.

Appeals were taken to the higher courts and the conviction of the former banker was sustained. During the litigation he suffered a stroke of paralysis and since his conviction he had another stroke, his counsel told the board today. Eaton expressed the fear that if Bell were returned to jail that a third stroke may occur and be fatal.

Bell served but a few days in jail after his conviction and when the appeals failed he was removed to the Allegheny General Hospital.

On June 1 of this year application was made to the board for a pardon. At Eaton's request consideration was deferred until the September meeting, pending the outcome of Bell's physical condition. When sessions were resumed in September the case was put off until October. Last month when the case was called Attorney General Baldridge was not in the hearing room, and again it was continued until it was argued today.

C. of C. Tourists Win New Orleans Backing

By MAX HENRICI,
Staff Correspondent.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 16.—What New Orleans has done to improve its water transportation facilities is receiving the attention of the Mississippi Gulf tourists of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce. Plans were formed for establishment of closer business relations between the two cities.

New Orleans has been concerning itself chiefly with the movement of freight down the river and across the sea. But the visit of the Pittsburghers has created a desire in New Orleans business men, in the words of Herbert Flowers, one of their spokesmen, "to go up the Mississippi."

The Times Picayune in an editorial today compliments Pittsburgh on its enterprise and promises the co-operation of New Orleans in waterway development.

On their arrivall here from Houston the Pittsburghers were taken on a large new steamer, the Greater New Orleans, for a sight-seeing trip around the harbor.

It was the vessel's first voyage and she was saluted with a din of whistle blasts by all the craft passed, among which was the towboat Monongahela of the Carnegie Steel Company. On returning from the harbor trip the visitors were tendered a luncheon by the New Orleans Association of Commerce at the St. Charles Hotel. During the afternoon some of the party played golf, others visited the quaint old French section, and a third group was taken on a yacht trip on Lake Pontchartrain to view the $27,000,000 lakeshore development project and through the industrial canal. In the evening a banquet was served in the Hotel Roosevelt.

R. S. Hecht, president of the board of commissioners of the Port of New Orleans, delivered an address on the development of New Orleans as a valley port. The spokesmen for Pittsburgh were William B. Rodgers, president of the Rodgers Sand Company; R. M. Gadsby, vice president of the West Penn Power Company; Charles K. Robinson and James Francis Burke.

KING GOES TO TALK DIVORCE

Mrs. King was registered friends said she was still in the city.

Mrs. King is known to have received a telegram from her husband several days ago in which he informed her he was coming to Des Moines. The wire is said to have conveyed the request that she make no further steps toward divorce until he conferred with her.

CHARGES FAILURE TO SUPPORT

According to Mrs. King's acquaintances, her trouble with King grew out of his alleged failure to support her. The reason for her coming to Des Moines was to obtain a position, they said. Friends denied Mrs. King went to Reno to start divorce proceedings.

While no definite information could be obtained, it was believed King would arrive here some time today or Thursday. Mrs. King has been making her home with a sister in Oskaloosa, Ia., until recently.

The cases of the Citizens League against scores of proprietors of alleged gambling "dives" and "speakeasies" will be dropped and the cases pending in Federal Court will be nolle prossed, it was rumored with the departure of William L. King, who yesterday slipped away from the city for the third time, probably never to return. The cases that are to be dropped will include more than a score that are to be presented to the grand jury Friday, it is said. Discovery that evidence to be used in the cases was false is said to have brought the decision to drop all pending cases.

King left Pittsburgh shortly before noon yesterday, headed West, it is believed, to reopen his law practice in some city in which he formerly resided. League officials last night refused to discuss the subject of dropping the cases, but said that they would have an official announcement to make today. A meeting of the league's executive board is scheduled for 4 o'clock in the Downtown Y. M. C. A.

GIVE KANE CLEAN SLATE

The dropping of the league's cases has been discussed for weeks and with the installation of William J. Kane as the new executive secretary, it is believed the league officials decided to start a new campaign with a clean slate. This is done to give Mr. Kane a free hand with no entanglements from previous raids to embarrass him.

The "framing" of evidence by some of the employes of the league is rumored and it is believed that cases were dropped because this would jeopardize all the prosecutions. League officials refused to discuss this phase of the matter.

Included in the cases which probably will not be brought to trial is the blackmail conspiracy charges against Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh and Jakie Klein, the larceny charges against Capt. Daniel Ambrose and Lieut. Nuncio Marino, in connection with the taking of "reports" from league investigators whom they had arrested.

FIND POLICE LIEUTENANT SHOT DEAD IN BATHHOUSE

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—James F. Reilly, acting police lieutenant, was found shot to death in a Turkish bath in Brooklyn. His revolver was found close by. Suicide is suspected.

"DRIPPING WET" ELECTED

DENVER, Col., Nov. 16.—F. Harrison White, Democrat and "dripping wet," was elected to Congress in a special election today, defeating Francis Knaus, Republican, who ran on a bone dry platform and was reputed to have had the support of the Ku Klux Klan.

With only 20 precincts missing out of 293 in the district, made up of the city of Denver, White was leading his opponent by 4,626 votes. The count stood: White 29,775 and Knauss 25,149. Returns from the missing precincts could not change the result.

The election was held to select a successor to William N. Vaile, Republican, who died in June.

In pre-election statements Knauss declared White had "sidetracked all but the so-called modification resolution to get a straw vote on matters not directly involved in the campaign."

HIGHWAY COMPLETED

OIL CITY, Pa., Nov. 16.—The last concrete on the 15-mile stretch of the Allegheny highway between Tionesta and Tidioute was poured last evening, completing the first link of the proposed scenic drive along the Allegheny river from Oil City to Warren.

Cadillac-LaSalle Superiority Matched by McALISTER SERVICE

TO SERVICE—prompt, thorough, courteous, yet economical—McAlister Brothers have dedicated their great institution, knowing that where service is sound, success will take care of itself. It is the constant ideal of the McAlister Brothers' organization to match the superiority of Cadillac-LaSalle cars with a service that is flawless.

A nice perception and a sound judgment of values, is, of course, implied by the very ownership of such cars as Cadillac and La Salle: such owners know that the ultimate in post-purchase service is the right of the buyer.

Recognizing this, McAlister Brothers have made service their sole shibboleth. Beyond the few hundred feet of showroom space, necessary for display purposes, lie more than two acres of space housing thirteen distinct servicing departments. They testify McAlister Brothers' belief that there is no substitute for service.

BOY, 6, HIT BY AUTO, KILLED; DRIVER HURT

Paul Byers, 6, of West Elizabeth, died in the McKeesport General Hospital last night from a fractured skull suffered earlier when he was struck in front of his home by an automobile driven by Fred Wadsworth of Mt. Pleasant, who was also injured when he swerved his auto into a pole to avoid hitting the child. Wadsworth was released on his own recognizance for appearance at an inquest.

A young woman who had been unconscious in the Magee Hospital for 24 hours as a result of an automobile accident, while police were endeavoring to locate her relatives, was identified last night as Miss Catherine Hase of 1219 Reservoir street, Monessen. She died at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Identification was made by a sister whom she had been visiting in Pittsburgh. She was knocked down by an automobile in front of the hospital in Forbes street Monday evening.

John A. Cuthbert, 72, of Freeport, who came here to see the scene of the explosion, is in the Allegheny General Hospital suffering from a bullet wound in the abdomen, suffered yesterday when a gun which he carried in his pocket discharged after he was struck at Tenth street and Penn avenue by a truck driven by Joseph Miller, 190 Thirty-eighth street. Cuthbert, whose condition is said to be critical, is charged with being a suspicious person, and Miller is held on a reckless driving charge.

GOVERNOR WILL PROBE COAL STRIKE

ABUSE CHARGES BY MINERS TO BE SIFTED

HARRISBURG, Nov. 16.—Investigation of the charges of the abuse and misuse of police powers and brutality in the strike area of Western Pennsylvania was assured today by Gov. Fisher to representatives of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, the United Mine Workers of America and other labor interests.

This assurance was given during a three-hour conference held in the Governor's office. The delegation of labor leaders was headed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

The delegation came here from Pittsburgh where a meeting was held yesterday at which time decision was reached to lay the matter before Gov. Fisher. President Coolidge also is to be seen to discuss with the latter matters where the federal government has jurisdiction.

Gov. Fisher at the conclusion of the session said he had assured the delegation that he would take the matter under consideration and give it "earnest study." "There were a number of things developed during the session," he said, "and I shall make an inquiry."

The question of the entire police field was discussed, the Governor said. The state has been keeping in touch with the situation in the strike zone for months, but this study will be intensified as a result of today's meeting.

Just what methods Gov. Fisher plans to pursue in his study he would not indicate after the meeting.

He probably will direct an investigation by state officials to bring before him all available data on the subject.

Members of the committee with President Green were Philip Murray and Thomas Kennedy, both Pennsylvanians, and vice president and secretary-treasurer, respectively, of the United Mine Workers of America; James Wilson, of the Patternmakers' Union; Matthew Well, of the Photo-Engravers' Union and vice president of the American Federation of Labor; James Maloney of the glass-blowers and M. F. Tighe of the sheet and metal workers.

This committee was directed yesterday at an American Federation of Labor meeting in Pittsburgh to visit the Governor, "to demand an immediate investigation of all that is charged against the state government and to secure from him not only the assurance but the actual enforcement of equality before the law and a full, complete and immediate manifestation of interest and activity in behalf of human relations and human liberties of the citizens of the state."

Downey, sophomore pre-medical, and Harry E. Felich, college sophomore, were next with grades of 90 per cent or more. Of the 530 students in the high school who also had their tests, John Riett and George M. Yunker of Division D, second year class, had the highest marks.

EAST END DRUG STORE BANDITS SENTENCED

Declared by police to be two of the most dangerous criminals that ever operated in the city, William Ranger, of Cleveland, and Herbert Nolan, of Akron, each was sentenced to six to 12 years in the Western Penitentiary by Judge James B. Macfarlane in Criminal Court today, after entering pleas of guilty to three East End drugstore holdups in October.

The prisoners in asking leniency claimed they were each 19 years old, although both looked and acted much older.

They held up the drugstores of Louis B. Bluestone, 527 Shady avenue, October 1, obtaining $77; the store of G. W. Alvin, 544 Paulson avenue, October 14, and the store of John B. Cullen, 4649 Center avenue, October 23, getting $20.

They were held on a charge of stealing merchandise from interstate freight shipments. They were arrested by Pennsylvania Railroad police, who accused them of taking goods from freight cars.

2 SALOON MEN ADJUDGED IN CONTEMPT

Judge Thomas D. Carnahan, in Common Pleas Court, has declared Arthur M. Dietz and his father, Jacob M. Dietz, former saloon keepers of 85 Federal street, North Side, guilty of contempt of court in connection with alleged violations of the prohibition laws.

October 14, 1925, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania had the Dietz place declared a nuisance and closed for one year. They appealed to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, which upheld the lower court. In June, 1926, the Commonwealth informed Common Pleas Court that the saloon was open. The late Judge John D. Shafer took testimony, but died before he rendered a decision. Last August the saloon was raided and the Commonwealth asked that the owners be adjudged in contempt when testimony was taken before Judge Carnahan, the Dietzs testified that the saloon was operated only by Walter Dietz, another son, although the elder Dietz admitted that the son Walter had a verbal lease. Special Deputy State Attorney General Robert M. Ewing prosecuted and Charles B. Prichard represented the defendants.

TRANSFER FUNDS TO PAY ROAD DEBTS

The County Commissioners yesterday authorized the transfer of $200,000 from the general fund to the commissioners' road bond fund to be used to wipe out current estimate contracts on county improvements that have been completed. The commissioners explained that the "loan" would be returned to the general fund as soon as sufficient commissioners' bonds could be sold.

For the past six months the commissioners have urged County Controller Charles C. McGovern to approve the sale of sufficient bonds to pay off all contract debts. The Controller has refused to do so, because the commissioners have failed to turn over to him a debt statement of the county.

Contractors who have completed county improvements have been clamoring for their money, but the commissioners were unable to pay them until today when they authorized the transfer.

CAPITOL OFFICE ANNEX TO BE RUSHED

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 16—(AP)—Construction of the North office building in Capitol Park is to be started as soon as the architects complete the revised plans and bids can be advertised, Gov. John S. Fisher announced today.

The governor's announcement came after a meeting of the board of public grounds and buildings, which, although it has no jurisdiction over the construction, discussed the project informally.

The money to finance the project, which it is estimated will cost $2,500,000, will come primarily from surpluses which have accumulated in allocations to road projects. The governor said he had assured the department of highways that money taken from the department for this purpose would be carried in the 1929 general appropriation bill and returned to the motor fund.

The 1927 Legislature appropriated $1,000,000 for construction of the new building, but phraseology of the act prohibited erection of the structure, since the bill provided it was to be constructed and completed with that amount.

The revised plans provide for alterations which, it is said, will save space equal to one floor. Other changes in the original plan are expected to effect a saving of at least $500,000.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF TROUSERS

NOT until a woman has been married at least once, does she realise what a vital part a man's trousers play in his life. Not until she has profaned them by hanging them wrong end up, or folding them over a chair does she realize their sacredness.

A man's trousers are to his spirit what a woman's hats are to her soul and her vanity. They induce his moods; they are symbols of his temperament and guide-posts to his character.

HELEN ROWLAND

A woman may rumple a man's evening shirt, weep all over his coat-lapel and cover his sleeves with rice-powder. But let her beware how she trifle with his trousers! The greatest proof of his love is his willingness to let a girl sit on his knee all evening—and spoil the creases in his trousers.

Trousers are symbolic! When men wore long petticoats, like Solomon and David, the world was full of poets and philosophers. Baggy trousers are an almost infallible sign of great intellect. No man ever wrote a great book, penned a great poem or became a great inventor in well-fitting trousers.

Every man changes his moods with his trousers. Half the time a woman doesn't recognize her own husband across a ballroom, in his evening trousers. It is so hard to recognize the solemn, dignified, unhappy looking person with the polished manner and the impressive air as the same happy-go-lucky being who was singing in his bath and swearing at his razor half an hour before.

Put the same man in white plus-fours and he "feels like a boy" again! You've got to keep your eye on him to keep him out of mischief. Knickers make him brisky and flirtatious. How Washington ever won the Revolutionary War in them without stopping every few minutes to admire his calves, no wife can imagine. More men have strayed from the straight and narrow path in fancy golf stockings than ever slipped in dancing pumps. They make a man feel so dare-devil and debonnaire!

But these are only a few of man's trouser-moods and variations. There is his "substantial-citizen" mood for blue serge trousers, and his gay-Lothario mood for gray pin-strikes. There are his frayed and faded fishing pants, his snappy riding-breeches, his pajama pants, his B. V. D.'s—Oh yes, a man's whole life revolves around his TROUSERS!

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Thursday, November 17

Astrology interested us, for it tied man to the system.—EMERSON.

LIVELY movements in the affairs of the day are presaged from the friendly position of Mercury, in sextile aspects with Luna. This should spur up all commercial transactions, all that relates to new contracts, publishings and writings, but a retarding influence from Saturn may have the tendency to postpone, delay, procrastinate. Personal affairs should be pleasantly active.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a fairly active year, with certain lines of business moving and with new contracts under discussion. But there may be delays and setbacks or postponements of live issues. Personal activities should be lively and pleasant.

A child born on this day should be clever and versatile, as well as steady and industrious. It may be well liked for its kindly and gracious manner and feelings.

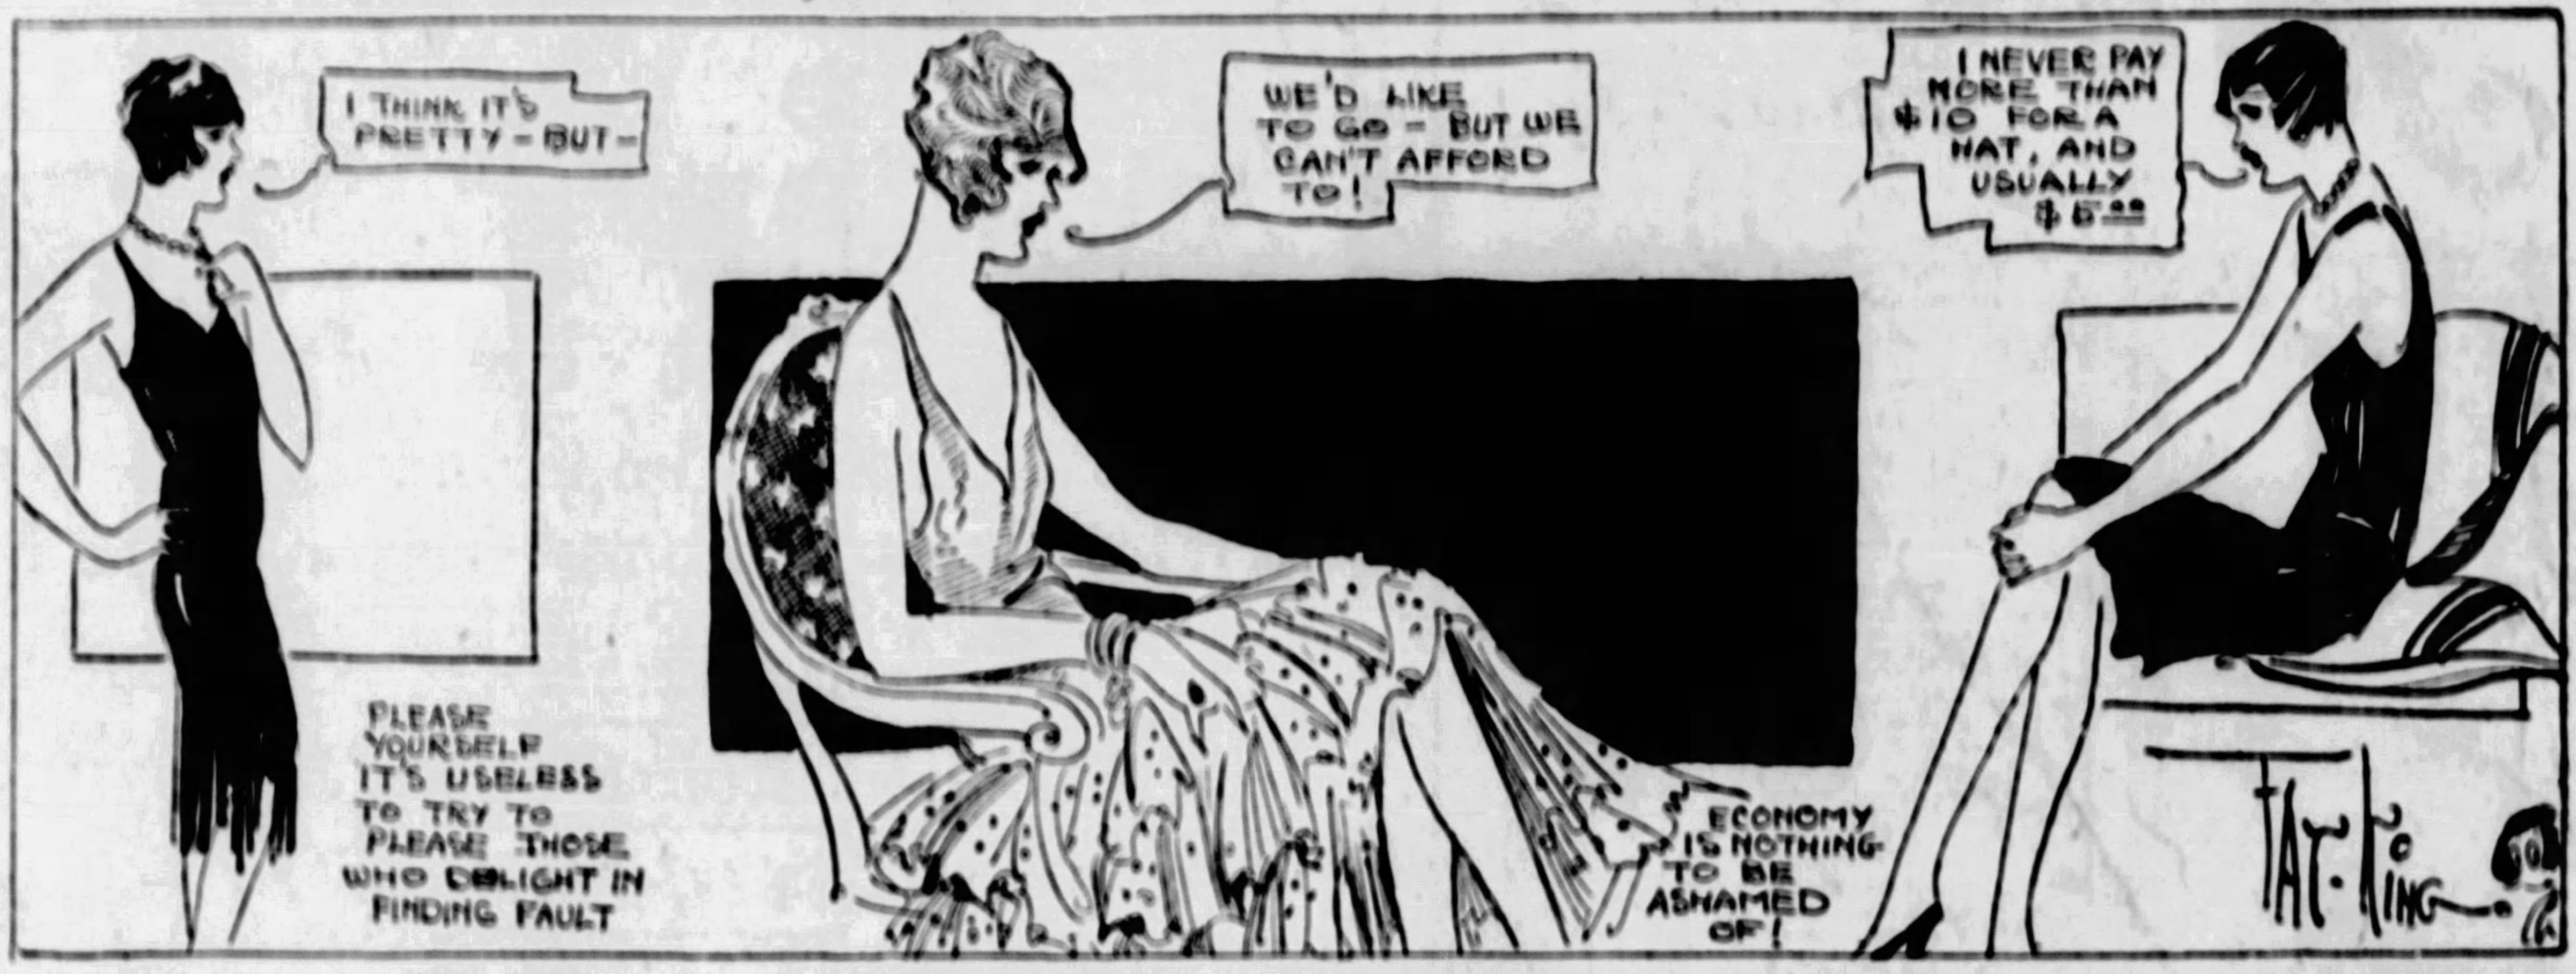
Envious, Bragging Women Stir Fay King's Ire



I THINK IT'S PRETTY—BUT—
WE'D LIKE TO GO—BUT WE CAN'T AFFORD TO!
I NEVER PAY MORE THAN $10 FOR A HAT, AND USUALLY $5.00
PLEASE YOURSELF IT'S USELESS TO TRY TO PLEASE THOSE WHO DELIGHT IN FINDING FAULT ECONOMY IS NOTHING TO BE ASHAMED OF!
FAY KING

By FAY KING.

SOME women are so foolishly influenced by others that one word of criticism from another woman will turn them against a garment they bought or a decoration they worked weeks to make and were delighted with until along came some one who said:

"I think it's pretty BUT—"

Now, there are certain people with a misplaced joint in their visions who take keen delight in picking flaws. It is as usual to meet with their approval as to carry hot water in a sieve. The quickest way to cure them is just to smile and say:

"I adore it!"

Some other foolish women seem to think that economy is a crime. They would rather die than admit to anyone that they cannot afford anything. They will waste breath and energy making explanations why they do not do this or do not get that.

Certainly everyone has a right to do as she pleases and spend her money as she sees fit and can afford. No one need be backward or embarrassed to frankly admit they cannot afford this or that because they are saving for something else.

Those who like you, will like you just as much and those who don't like you never will and even less if you try to outdo them.

Some women delight in making their friends envious. They will buy a hat at an annual clearance sale at some exclusive shop and then put the label in all the $5 hats they get for the next year and declare that they never pay less than $15 or $20 for a hat.

But I have known clever girls who could afford to pay most any price declare with joy when I admire a pretty hat they were wearing that it only cost $5—which it did.

Be honest, and avoid friends who are not.

Many a wife is irritable and unhappy when her husband comes home because some stupid, silly, bragging, criticizing neighbor has stopped in during the afternoon.

Get rid of people like that!

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.

U.S. Senator from New York

Water Is a Prime Essential to Health

WHAT a tremendous country this is! I am writing on a lovely Sunday morning, while crossing the American continent.

DR COPELAND

We are in Arizona with its wide open spaces, countless acres of unoccupied lands, cloudless skies and neverfailing sunshine.

Millions of acres here are doomed to everlasting sterility because of the lack of water.

I should not say "lack" of water. It is lack of water control and distribution as moisture is needed.

In this country there is a feast or a famine. Either there is a torrential flood, or else no rain falls for weeks and months. There is not that uniform, unfailing supply of moisture that Nature demands if vegetation is to thrive.

Some folks learn nothing from the things they see. They may look at a waste like this and imagine it is the effect of a barren soil. As a matter of fact, the chief trouble is lack of water. The soil is rich enough and given plenty of water will bloom like the rose.

It is just the same with animal life. There can be no physical prosperity without water and an abundance of it.

Many a time I meet a person who has parchment-like skin, withered tissues and scrawny appearance. It is not literally true that all such individuals look the way they do because of the lack of water. Many of them, however, have permitted their tissues to dry up and bake into hardness. By denying their thirsting cells the moisture for which they yearn just as much as the soil in the Southwest, the normal plumpness and elasticity have disappeared.

The food we eat is of no use to us until it is finely divided and dissolved. Not until it goes into solution it is capable of being taken up by the tiny cells of the body. The fluid which surrounds and bathes every cell carries in its stream the nourishing and growth-giving substances. In no other way can these materials reach and enrich the vital parts of the body.

Even the brain cells would dry up, grow hard and become useless without fluid to bathe and preserve them. There must be an abundant supply of rich, red blood to keep the brain in condition and capable of operating a clear mind.

The basis of blood and lymph and all the glandular secretions is water. The fluids of the body demand an unfailing replenishment from water taken into the stomach. Without the right sort of blood, health and function must suffer. You cannot have that sort of blood without taking lots of water.

Next time you see a barren stretch of soil, let it be a reminder to you. Bear in mind all the time that a body thrives by what it drinks, just as much as your flowers and garden thrive by reason of the water they get.

Answers to Health Queries

W. W. B. Q.—What can I do for a stiffness in my fingers?

A.—You are probably troubled with arthritis. The teeth, tonsils, sinuses, glands, intestines and kidneys are all possible points of infection when looking for the cause. You should have a thorough examination. For other information sent a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

E. P. O. Q.—I am afflicted with vertigo, and the doctors whom I have consulted cannot find out the cause. What would you advise?

A.—May be due to a number of conditions, some intestinal condition, a circulatory disturbance, or a possible ear or eye condition. Examination should help to locate the source, and then proper treatment can be advised.

DESERTED BY WIFE, DOCTOR KILLS HIMSELF

Letters Tell Tragic Story of Grief

After penning a farewell letter to his estranged wife, Dr. Ernest E. Andrews, of 1019 Coal street, Wilkinsburg, pushed the trigger of a shotgun, pointed at his heart, with a fishing pole, and ended his life late yesterday afternoon, according to a report to the coroner.

His 14-year-old son, Buddy, returning home from a movie, found the shot-riddled body. On the table over which his body was slumped, were two letters, one a letter from his wife, Mrs. Blanche Andrews, of Chicago, in which she stated she could never live with him again, and advising him to marry again, and the other a hasty reply in which Dr. Andrews described his action as "the only way out."

A postscript added to Dr. Andrews' letter stated that he was just scribbling to muster up the nerve to take the final step. He also wished his friends, who were to visit him today, to take a good look at him." He said his son suspected that he was about to commit suicide.

His wife's letter also stated that she had left him because of domestic arguments. "When you were always right and I was always wrong, there was nothing for me to do but leave," the letter read.

Andrews and his son have been here since August. Andrews sold drugs for a local drug concern, according to Paul R. Wagner, who identified the body at the morgue.

MUSIC
MENDELSSOHN CHOIR
Carnegie Music Hall

The Mendelssohn Choir under Ernest Lunt's direction gave its first concert of the season last night in Carnegie Music Hall. Mr. Lunt again displayed his excellent policy of bringing us the best in choral music by offering Mozart's Requiem and Dvorak's Stabat Mater, two master works, with an overdose of sorrow for one evening's entertainment.

I believe the choice of these two oratorios was a mistake; while the music is of two schools and two philosophies utterly diverse, the emotional results remain alike in both. Nowhere else has Mozart written finer choruses, for the Requiem came at the end of his short life. Dvorak, like all Slavs and Italians, wrote the melodies of his people into his church music. His treatment of solo voices as members of the chorus is plausible, but distends the long, laborious ensemble numbers beyond artistic limits.

Mr. Lunt's choir sings now with such accuracy of intonation, of rhythm, of attack, it is now such a wieldly instrument in his hands that he may, I am sure, take more liberties and allow his singers more flexibility. Mozart last evening lacked much of that definite style, that cold precision of musical line and phrase, that adherence to form that finds its finest utterance in the Magic Flute. Dvorak, on the contrary, wants more warmth, more fervor that comes from the heart instead of from the throat.

Assisting the choir was a quartet of very able singers, Jeannette Vreeland, soprano; Nevada Van Der Veer, contralto; Judson House, tenor, and Frank Cuthbert, basso. Their first ensemble number was a poor blending of four distinct qualities of voice, later they improved and at the beginning of the Dvorak had found themselves. But I cannot imagine why most oratorio singers sing this music with such everlasting lugubrious tone. The organ accompaniment for the Requiem was scarcely enough support for the large choir. Earl Mitchell played the prelude to the Stabat Mater with a spirit I hoped the leader had sanctioned, but it soon fell behind, too.

WOMAN SAVED FROM FALLS

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—A favorable current and the nerve of a reservation policeman last night saved Mabel Smith, 30, of Buffalo, from being dashed to death over the falls near the American shore.

Miss Smith, police said, entered the water at "Suicide Point," about 400 feet above the cataract, and was carried down the rapids to within 50 feet of the falls brink.

Patrolman Michael Senf waded into the water and seized the woman when a sudden swirl of the rapids carried her inshore. Miss Smith declared that she had fallen into the river.

"Electricity!— The Foe of Drudgery"

Says Mrs. John D. Sherman
President, General Federation of Women's Clubs

"Electrically equipped homes mean happier and more healthful homes. The cost of electrically operated labor-reduction devices is offset many times by the saving, the increased efficiency, the protection to health and the contribution to the general well-being of the family of such devices."*

THE constructive efforts of the forward-looking electric power companies of the United States have released an ever-increasing number of women from the exacting duties of the household to more congenial and interesting pursuits of life.

Every new electrical invention finds an abundance of power ready to serve it. Through the enterprise of these companies, inspired by individual initiative, electric power plants and service facilities are being constructed five years in advance of consumer demand. Since 1900, the capacity of these plants has been doubled every five years.

Keenly alert to their social obligations, these electric power companies have not been content to rest on the expansion of their facilities. The most expert, highly skilled and highly trained technical personnel in the whole field of industry is working for the betterment of electrical service and the reduction of its cost.

As a result of this sense of trusteeship, the average home today enjoys the comforts and conveniences of electricity at a cost of only a few cents per day.

Operating under the American principle of individual initiative, and working in the interests of the public, these specialists in science, engineering, finance and administration constitute one of society's greatest forces in the promotion of a freer, more enlightened and abundant life. In the continued support of this principle lies America's assurance of all that makes for progress, prosperity and cultural opportunity.

HELD PRISONER BY DOG, WIFE CHARGES

Her husband allowed a vicious unmuzzled police dog to roam around the lawn of her father's home to keep her indoors during her husband's absence, Mrs. Irene Gordon, 629 Lilly avenue, Braddock, charged in her divorce suit against her husband, Perry Gordon, before Judge Thomas J. Ford.

The Gordons were married in June, 1925, at Greenwich, Conn., went to the bride's home at Hempstead, L. I., to live. They lived together less than two months.

According to the wife her husband struck her, discolored her eye, burned her arm with a cigaret and hit her when she screamed; struck her with a shovel and threatened her with a gun.

Mrs. Gordon said her husband, at the time of her marriage, declared he was a magazine writer. Later he told her he received an income from a woman who, learning he had married, discontinued the income.

RUTH'S HUSBAND SAILS ALONE

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—With a kiss and a promise Ruth Elder told her husband, Lyle Womack, goodbye before he sailed on the Panama liner Cristobal for Balboa, Panama.

The promise was made in a whisper, following the kiss. It was:

"As soon as I'm through, dear, I'll come back."

Then, with her business agent, Miss Elder ran down the steps and sped away in a closed car.

Womack paused on the steps for a few moments. The boat was not to sail for 30 minutes. Tears came to his eyes.

"Gee, I'll be lonesome going back," he said.

Simple Home Recipe For Bad Stomach Gives Swift Relief

If you are a victim of Stomach Troubles—Gas, Sourness, Pain or Bloating—you may have quick and certain relief by following this good advice.

Artificial digestants and starvation diets are seldom needed. Within reason, most folks may eat what they like, if they will keep their stomach free from souring acids that hinder or paralyze the work of digestion. And the best and easiest way to do this is to follow every meal with 3 or 4 tablets of Bisurated Magnesia—a pleasant, harmless form of Magnesia that swiftly neutralizes acidity and keeps your stomach sweet and clean.

A few days' trial of Bisurated Magnesia tablets, which any good druggist can supply at trifling cost, should quickly convince you that fully 90% of ordinary stomach distress is absolutely unnecessary! Try Bisurated Magnesia tablets today!

PIMPLES AND BLACKHEADS ALL OVER FACE

Was ashamed to be seen—simple remedy brought quick improvement

Munden, Va., Aug. 5:—"Awhile ago I began to be troubled with enlarged pores and blackheads. Then pimples developed, and even boils. My skin was very sore and in a terrible condition. It was so disfigured and unsightly I was ashamed of it. I tried about everything to be had for pimples, but with no good results. I had heard Resinol Ointment and Soap so highly recommended for troubles like mine, I decided to try them. After one treatment there was a decided improvement, and the pimples began to fade away. I advise everybody with skin trouble to try Resinol." (Signed) Miss Hazel Beasley.

COUNTY REFUSES C. OF C. SURVEY FUND REQUEST

W. C. T. U. Replies to Dry Law Editorial

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Sir: At the November meeting of the Allegheny County Women's Christian Temperance Union, Mrs. Elizabeth J. Gibson and Mrs. Jenny DeVinney were appointed to reply to an editorial on "Prohibition Slipping?" published in the Sun-Telegraph, November 4, and this reply we ask you to publish so that both sides of the question may be read by your readers.

In that article, the writer says that the prohibition law was put through during the excitement of the war and the people had no chance to vote on it, forgetting that in 1779 the first temperance society was organized and since that many other organizations of the same kind, and that in 1886 Congress passed a law requiring scientific temperance instruction in all schools under government supervision. In 1876 the first bill was introduced in Congress to prohibit alcoholic liquors.

The majority of the membership of Congress were elected before we went in to the war and the Eighteenth Amendment was ratified by 46 states, more than ratified any other of the 19 amendments. At the time the bill was passed 65 per cent of the people were living in dry territory, 95 per cent of the territory was dry and 33 states were dry.

If, as he writes, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler holds prohibition responsible for the crime and immorality of the young people, it shows he has not investigated the matter very thoroughly, as the crime wave is not limited to this country.

Word comes from some European countries and Australia that the same conditions prevail there, as well as from our own continent, as the following item from the Winnipeg Free Press shows: "Juvenile crime in Winnipeg and throughout Manitoba is increasing. Equal and common drunkenness and gambling among young people has greatly increased."

The greater part of the blame should be put upon conditions caused by the war and upon parents who are setting young people the example of violating all laws.

Drinking among young people is not quite so prevalent as some would have us believe, as the report of a survey printed in the Literary Digest shows. Questionnaires were sent to 100 college presidents and 100 city school superintendents and the answers proved that about one-half of 1 per cent of last year's graduates drank to excess and only about 5 per cent drank at all.

Dr. Charles A. L. Reed, a past president of the American Medical Association, is quoted as saying "that in a republic it is dangerous to talk about the fetish of the Constitution. No constitutional provision nor any laws enacted thereunder that violate the fundamental law of human wellbeing ever have been or ever ought to be observed by an independent people. Alcohol is a normal constituent of the brain tissue, and an energizer and when exhausted it must be replaced."

The first part of this does not sound very loyal to the Constitution, and he overlooks the result of the investigation of the prohibition law conducted by a sub-committee of the Senate Judiciary Committee, at Washington, when the findings were that the law is both morally right and economically wise."

Dr. J. N. Jackson, another past president of the American Medical Association says: "I cannot speak for the American Medical Association, but my personal opinion is that a weak spot in the Volstead act is permitting whisky for medicine. I do not believe there is a bit of use for whisky as medicine."

Dr. Howard Kelly of Johns Hopkins gives his opinion thus: "Liquor in all its forms and used for any purpose whatever, I believe to be an unmitigated evil. It could be abolished with profit." Col. L. Melvin Maus of the Medical Corps of the United States Army gives his testimony in these words: "After a careful study of alcohol as a beverage and as a medicine, I have been unable to discover one beneficial or useful purpose it serves in the human economy." Strange if it is such a necessary evil that 21 states forbid the prescribing of it for medicine.

Then he writes of the Asiatics who are non-users being governed by users, not taking into consideration the fact that many of these people are peaceful and would rather be imposed upon than fight and that many other things enter into the situation besides the drinking of alcohol. But if that is what makes the ones who use it victors, they had better change their ways, for by government sale and use of the revenue from liquor and opium for education, the day will come when the "worm will turn."

The article closes by hoping that "in due time what ought to be done and what is right will be done," as it would be a pity to have the 115,000,000 people of the United States compelled to take their choice between bootleg whisky and brains badly energized." The last sentence sounds like a joke to those who know that alcohol is one of the worst poisons the brain ever ecounters.

What ought to be done will be done when people who have anything to do with enforcing the law, keep the pledges they take and when the good people of the country are more careful about voting to put in office men who will enforce all law and when people in general have more reverence for the law of God as well as man-made laws.

It takes time for all great changes to be made, as was shown by abolishing the slave trade in 1807. In 1817 President Monroe called for help in enforcing that law and for years afterward slave owners were violating the law.

Enforcement is progressing where there is a will to have it do so and as time goes on, we shall see, by contrast with other countries, how much better off we are since prohibition came.

Very truly yours,
MRS. ELIZABETH J. GIBSON.
Pittsburgh, November 12, 1927.

Peter P. Nock.

Peter P. Nock, 67, died Monday in his home, 566 South avenue. He had been a lifelong resident of Pittsburgh and was a baker. He retired 10 years ago after working at leading hotels in the city for many years. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Margaret Conley Nock; six daughters, Catherine, Margaret, Alice, Elizabeth, Grace and Anna Nock; three sons, George, Joseph and Peter P. Nock, Jr., and 42 grandchildren.

Think Report on Probe Should Be Filed First

A request of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce for an appropriation of $50,000 a year to be used with additional sums to carry out a topographical survey and mapping of the city and county, was refused, for the time being, by the County Commissioners today. A. V. Snell, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, in a letter informed the Commissioners that a report of the Engineer's Council of the Chamber, asking for $100,000 a year to make the survey had been unanimously adopted at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce October 20.

The chamber pointed out that as both the city and county would be effected in the survey, the expense should be borne between them, and asked that $50,000 each be appropriated by the Commissioners and City Council.

County Commissioner E. V. Babcock objected to making the appropriation. A motion was made by Commissioner James Houlahen to table the matter until the Commissioners met to map out a budget for next year. The motion was not passed and the matter was tabled for later consideration.

"There is a committee investigating the controversy between the County Controller and the Commissioner's office on how county business is conducted," Commissioner Babcock said.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Prince and Princess Mingle With Other Notables Here Today for Sarah Mellon Wedding

CERTAINLY the most important and most fashionable wedding of the season is scheduled for today, when Sarah Mellon will marry Alan Scaife in the East Liberty Presbyterian Church. Being a daughter of the Richard Beatty Mellons, Sarah has, naturally, a background of wealth and social distinction that alone would make her wedding one of unusual interest. But, added to that, Sarah has made so many friends through her own personality and has been active in so many charities that no church could possibly be large enough to hold all those who would like to see her married.

As you know, the Mellons have built a huge marquee adjoining their own immense Fifth avenue home, and there the reception and dance will be held after the ceremony, with hundreds of guests added to the list of those who will attend the church ceremony service.

A number of very distinguished guests have already arrived for the wedding, and more came in today. Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon is among those who arrived this morning for his niece's marriage. Princess Lebkowitz, the former Anita Lihme, of New York, at whose wedding Sarah was a bridesmaid, is here with the prince, and they are guests of the William Christopher Robinsons, of the North Side. Princess Lebkowitz's sister, Mrs. C. A. Griscom III, of Philadelphia, is a member of the bridal party and, of course, has already arrived.

Mr. and Mrs. Carnes Weeks, who are also in the bridal party, are here and are visiting the latter's parents, the Charles S. Shoemakers, of Termon avenue; and Mrs. Nelson Slater, the former Martha Lyons, has also arrived for the wedding. A few among the many others here are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Tercy, who are guests of Mrs. Harvey Norton Van Voorhis, and Mrs. Charles Blackwell.

Mrs. Van Voorhis gave a luncheon in the Golf Club today for the bridal party, and last night Eleanor Chalfant, the maid of honor, entertained with a dinner and dance in the Pittsburgh Golf Club for Sarah and Alan. There were 65 guests, and the long table had the novel decorations of gilded cages of love birds.

The ceremony is, as you remember, set for 5:30 o'clock, but many of the guests are planning to arrive much earlier, since the church is not especially large, and it is expected to be well filled.

An interesting wedding of yesterday was that of Roberta Peebles Rhodes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Pearson Rhodes, of Wilkins avenue, and Reginald Quaile, son of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. George G. Quaile, of Salisbury, Conn., which took place at 5:30 o'clock in Calvary Episcopal Church. The Rev. Dr. Edwin J. Van Etten officiated, with Dr. Quaile assisting. The bride wore white velvet and rose point lace, with a full court train of satin. Her tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms, and she carried a white velvet prayer book showered with bouvardia, orchids and lilies of the valley.

The matrons of honor were Mrs. John Bower Rhodes, of Short Hills, N. J., wearing honeydew chiffon velvet and carrying yellow and bronze chrysanthemums, and Mrs. Ralph King, of Cleveland, in maize velvet, with a bouquet of orchid chrysanthemums. Frocks of apricot velvet were worn by the bridesmaids, Mrs. Alan S. Humphrey, Mrs. George A. Kelly, Catherine Suydam and Helen Leovy. Their flowers were yellow and bronze pompoms. All the attendants wore velvet hats to match their gowns. The flower girl, Patricia Hillman, wore pink chiffon with a pink velvet poke bonnet, and carried a Colonial bouquet.

JOURNALISM DISCUSSED BEFORE CRITERION CLUB

"Twentieth Century Journalism" was discussed last night at the meeting of the Criterion Club by the Rev. Dr. W. Wofford T. Duncan and "Journalists of the Nineteenth Century" was the subject of a paper given by Mrs. Roy S. Dougall. The meeting was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Challener, South Graham street. Dr. Duncan presented first the new features of the century, spoke of the newspaper as a gerat commercial enterprise, mentioned the capital required, the mechanical efficiency, the marvelous news collecting agencies, the rapidity with which they work and their accuracy in spite of the speed. The tabloid and chain newspaper also were discussed. Since many people read nothing but newspapers, they are the greatest promoters of public sentiment, Dr. Duncan said, speaking of "the newspaper mind." Nor was his paper without criticism of the modern newspaper, which he took to task on several counts.

Mrs. Dougall spoke biographically of James Gordon Bennett, Horace Greeley, George Dennison Prentice, Joseph Pulitzer and William Randolph Hearst and touched a bit on the Colonial beginnings of journalism.

MISS MELLON'S WEDDING

erected a $100,000 pavilion in which the bride's reception, the wedding supper and ball will be held. Here nearly 1,000 guests will be welcomed in a great hall that resembles the fantastic elegance of an Oriental temple.

The rugs, tapestries, frescoes and hangings in their lavish use remind all persons who visited the Philadelphia Sesqui-Centennial Exposition of the exhibit in East Indian building, and a glance around the structure makes it appear that the decorator had moved that Hindu display intact and added the $80,000 electrical illuminating effects to give it novelty and additional brilliancy.

HIRE THEIR OWN MOON

In providing a scene rivaling the beauty of a fairyland bower, the Mellons have challenged the elements. Although there may be no moon tonight, there will be moonlight—synthetic but serene—mellowing from all four sides of this gorgeous pavilion, where will be represented the wealth, the beauty and much of the society of Pittsburgh, Washington and New York.

Looking from the windows the guests will see no bleak November landscape besmirched with fog or smoke. Rather will they gaze out upon classic gardens where the moonlight steals among the evergreens and illuminates bewitchingly the marble images of Venus, Psyche and Diana. A riot of color and extravagance within, the windows will open upon tropic scenes befitting the storied environment of romance.

All the skill of the stage-master's craft was employed in arranging for this weird semblance of a summer moon. Huge lenses are hung high under the eaves of the pavilion roof, and myriad electric bulbs cast their glow, changing hues as though by the passing of clouds.

The artificial moonlight is but one example of the gorgeousness and unsparing expense in the arrangements for tonight's wedding. The pavilion itself cost more than the average better class dwelling in the best Pittsburgh suburbs. It is 100 by 175 feet and the dome roof reaches a height of nearly 40 feet. In the center is a great hall 50 by 100 feet, facing a tall arched window in the west and leading to a wide vaulted vestibule on the opposite end. On both sides of the hall are wings 25 by 30 feet, which likewise have high arched windows, and it is through these that the illusion of moonlight will be seen.

GORGEOUS TRIMMINGS

The vaulted vestibule leads from the western postern of the Mellon residence by a gentle ascent. Here will take place the reception and here is the gallery-like room, the furnishings, Oriental in their suggestion, are extravagant beyond description. Rich rugs from beyond Iraq form exquisite cushions underfoot. Tapestries from Iran and the mountains of the Caspian suspend from the walls amid hangings of silken plush.

In broad panels between are glistening mirrors that catch up the designs of carpets and hangings and mingle them with the glow of gold, orange and blue from the lofty ceiling that seemingly stretches to infinity in a glowing mist.

A proscenium arch separates the vestibule from the main hall, and at this entrance are looped curtains of orange plush. The floor of the hall is waxed for the dancers who will throng its broad expanse following the serving of the supper.

Like a palace described in Arabian Nights is this great hall. The ceiling, a huge dome, is done in frescoes of salmon and Delft blue in extreme impressionistic design. On four sides are braces of curved pillars of gold like the supporting arches of a Hindu temple, each pillar supporting a mystic light. Also the intervening panels are enormous candles with bulbs stimulating natural flame. The chandeliers, slender in shape, harmonize with the East Indian architecture typified by the golden pillars.

The walls are hung with antique tapestries depicting heroic and pastoral scenes. The background colors are neutral, giving the most pronounced display to the frescoes and the lavish work of goldleaf.

SEATS FOR 800 GUESTS

At the western end of the great hall flanking the arched window are two pagoda-like stands which will provide for the musicians. In one is space for an orchestra and in the other the soloists have their dais. When the guests enter the hall from the vestibule they will see nearly 100 tables seating six to eight persons at each. With snowy linen, sparkling crystal and gleaming silver the tables will in themselves make a striking decorative effect and emphasize the Oriental setting of the furnishings and hangings. Other tables will be placed in the north and south recesses of the pavilion.

The ceremony, which will take place in the East Liberty Presbyterian Church, will be in contrast to the splendor of the reception. The church, plants and flowers will form a vernal bower, but this will be in marked simplicity in comparison with the ornate pavilion.

The gifts received by the bride are estimated to be worth several hundred thousand dollars, and come from more than 1,000 well-wishers. The value of the gifts added to the expense for trousseau, the building and furnishing of the pavilion and cost of catering, flowers, music and other incidentals, it is declared, add several hundred thousand more.

Auto Sounds Passing Of "White Wings"

What has become of the great "army" of street cleaners, better known, perhaps, by the slang expression "white wings"? When Fifth avenue and Smithfield street was little more than a cross roads, and, later on, when the old Gusky dry goods store building, Third avenue and Market street, with its five stories towering heavenward, was considered a skyscraper, and still later on, when the first flivver, snorting and sputtering, rambled down the main "stem" of the city, the "white wing" held sway and was master of all he surveyed.

Today that old and honorable "profession" of "White Wings" after years of faithful service in keeping streets and byways spick and span, is fast passing into oblivion. What few manipulators of the broom and shovel remain are almost unrecognizable as they slowly trudge along. They no longer are conspicuous, as their uniform of "white ducks" and helmet hats have been tossed into the ashcan and today they dress the same as most any other laborer.

According to John Flinn, superintendent of the First Division, City Bureau of Highways and Sewers, but a handful of the old-time "White Wings" have stood the gaff and the steady march of progress.

And what caused the ignominious downfall of the "knights of the broom and shovel"? Mr. Flinn will tell you that the passing of Dobbin as the principal transporter of our wants and his successor, the automobile, sent the "White Wing" into the beyond from whence he will never return.

"Yes, sir, it was the automobile that took the laurels away from the horse and the 'White Wing,'" says Mr. Flinn. "It is too bad that such a thing has occurred, but we must keep apace with progress and with up-to-date equipment for cleaning streets, there was no room left for the street cleaners."

Continuing, Mr. Flinn recalled those glorious days when men were men and drug store cowboys and flapper bandits were only myths; when a pair of suspenders were thrown in with an $8.50 suit of clothes and an extra pair of shoestrings with a $1.50 pair of shoes as good will tokens. What price progress.

All this change has taken place within the past few years. First on the street at morning and last to leave at night, the "White Wing" with his ready smile and wholesome wit has been supplanted by the motor flushing street cleaner. During the early morning hours, the flusher travels over the streets, sending high pressure streams of water in all directions and driving the paper and other refuge gutterward. A few men follow behind the flusher and gather up the soggy paper, an automobile truck whisks it away and the up-to-date "White Wing" is through for the day.

"Do you believe that the old-time "White Wing will come back?" Mr. Flinn was asked. "Comebacks are hard to stage, few who have enjoyed success and fell, ever come back. The 'White Wing' is no exception, he will never come back."

So, thus endeth the career of the old-time "White Wing" as far as Pittsburgh is concerned—the old boys who slowly trudged behind their dinky push carts—the "knights of the broom and shovel."

REMUS' WIFE BRANDED TRAITOR BY NOTE

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.
(Copyright, 1927, By International News Service.)

COURTHOUSE, CINCINNATI, Nov. 16.—Correspondence passing between George Remus, on trial for murder in Criminal Court, and his wife, Imogene, whom he shot and killed on October 6 last, was obtained exclusively by International News Service today as the third day of the trial opened.

Eleven tentatively accepted jurors were in the box this morning, and the tedious task of selecting the jury was resumed.

The following note disclosed to Remus, then a prisoner in the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary, that his wife was planning to divorce him. It was written in pencil by Mrs. Remus, on a Western Union blank and read as follows:

"George:

"After our conversation today, it is very plain that you have lost confidence in me, and as you told me to go ahead and file, think I will follow your advice. If at any time I can assist you please let me know.

"My heart weighs too heavy to say any more.

"(Signed)
"IMO."

A copy of this communication was shown to Remus as he entered court today. He admitted he had received the note following his last meeting with Mrs. Remus at the Atlanta penitentiary.

"I could not understand the meaning of the note," said Remus. "It was my first intimation from her that she was planning to leave me. She visited me the very morning I received this communication. We held a long conference in Warden Shook's office. She had kissed me goodbye and we had parted, as I thought, in excellent spirits.

"That woman, however, as I see it now, left this note at the penitentiary to be delivered to me after she left. I immediately attempted to decipher it, but did not understand its real meaning until I was notified that she had filed suit for divorce at Cincinnati the next day."

Remus killed his wife in Eden Park while she was on her way to court to divorce him.

NIP ESCAPE OF DOOMED WOMAN

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—A plot to deliver Mrs. Catherine Cassler, under sentence of death for murder, and another prisoner, Mrs. Martha Schuster, from the county jail has been frustrated by the chief matron, it was learned today.

The matron, Mrs. Adeline Kunast, refused to tell the details of the plot, but said she maintained secret watch over the suspects and heard the details of the scheme.

Warden Fogarty ordered a special guard at Mrs. Cassler's cell and transferred Mrs. Schuster to Kane county jail.

Vote Probe Pay Fund Stopped

Balking on appropriating additional money to be used by the Bonsall Special Recount Board, which has been functioning since after the primary election in opening ballot boxes and rechecking the vote, County Commissioner E. V. Babcock said today he would not be a party to approving any more money for the board.

The action of the commissioner came when Gilbert Cleenan, county statistician, requested that an additional $4,000 be transferred from the general fund to the election fund to be used to pay members of the returning and recount boards. The commissioners in October appropriated $2,000 toward defraying the expenses of the recount board. As the work got under way it was found that more money was needed, and $2,500 was overdrawn from the fund. This amount became exhausted, and it was found that additional funds were necessary, and a request of $1,500 was filed with the statistician.

"I will not approve the additional appropriation unless the court orders it," Commissioner Babcock said. "What are they doing and how long do they intend to keep opening boxes?" the commissioner asked.

The commissioner was informed that Attorney Ward Bonsall, who is supervising the opening of the boxes and the recount, is receiving $29 a day and each of the clerks $10 a day.

It developed today that the cost of maintaining the returning board this year will be more than doubled from last year. So far $13,728 has been appropriated by the commissioners. Last year it cost $8,800 to tabulate the vote.

USE GLASS CUTTER IN OAKLAND THEFT ATTEMPT

Their proposed itinerary includes the Tanganyika territory and Uganga, returing through the Sudan by way of the Nile river.

Elopement Foiled as Girl Is Nabbed Here

Arrested here in a hotel after detectives were notified that she had planned to meet a man and get married, Madeline Ellis, 17, of St. Louis, was returned to that city last night by her mother, Mrs. Rose Ellis. The mother intercepted a telegram from her daughter to a young man in St. Louis, whom the girl planned to wed here.

Mrs. Ellis told police that her daughter left home a week ago and, after going to New York, came to Pittsburgh, as she had told John Wilson, her sweetheart, she would do. She then wired Wilson to meet her in Pittsburgh, where she was stopping at a hotel under an assumed name. Her mother received the telegram, notified Pittsburgh detectives and, after the girl had been arrested, came here to take her home.

MINER HELD IN FATAL STABBING

August Clerice, 30, of Russellton, Pa., died early this morning in the Allegheny Valley Hospital, Tarentum, from stab wounds suffered during a fight in the union miners barracks at Russellton.

Police are holding Frank Dominica, 40, of Russellton, on a charge of murder, in connection with the stabbing, which occurred late Sunday night. According to Tarentum police, Dominica became enraged when upon returning to the barracks, found Clerice with his wife.

Dominica pulled a knife, according to the report, and stabbed Clerice several times in the back and abdomen. Dominica suffered a severe laceration on the left arm when Clerice slashed in defense.

A riot followed in which Joe Bassetti, 37, of Russelton, who was in the barracks at the time of the fight, received several stab wounds in the chest. He was removed to the Allegheny Valley Hospital, where his condition is reported as serious. He is being held for Tarentum police.

THE REASON

By GERTRUDE GORDON.
(Contributed.)

A great disaster shrieks
Its woe and misery, and stark despair.
The very heavens groan, the earth itself,
Shudders to see, and hear
Children and women cry, and men, bewildered,
Curse and cringe.

Then—out of all this wretchedness,
This mire of fear, resentment and distress,
A flower is born—
The pure white flower of Charity,
The Charity which "pitieth and is kind;"
The Charity that is all Love and Gentleness,
Sympathy, and the Wish to Serve.

The Red Cross comes—the Volunteers—
Salvation Army Blue appears; the City Charities;
Boy Scouts, the Service Men,
Who now forget their mission to deal death,
And bring the joy of life instead.
Police and firemen, are heroes all.

Homes are opened to the throngs
Whose homes have been destroyed;
Food is given the hungry; clothes, the suffering,
And, more than all, sweet tenderness and gentle words.

So, if there is a reason why
These frightful things should come
Upon poor mortals—maybe this is it;
That the more fortunate ones may not forget
To love and serve, and, more than all, be kind.

Good fortune does not breed these sentiments—
It takes disasters grim to make them live
In hearts that might become too selfish
Were it not for need of selflessness
Once in a while.

So, if this the reason be, Dear God,
And love, and comfort these—
We pray Thee, keep us worthy to assist
Our Fellow Men.

Two Americans, George Kern, of New York, and William Seypelt, of Winnetka, Ill., are touring Europe in a 20-horsepower "flivver" plane. Here they are in the cockpit of their little but loud craft—the smallest two-passenger flier made, weighing only 270 kilogs. The wing-spread, however, is very large for the size of the ship; it is 43 feet from tip to tip.

PITTSBURGHER BELIEVED NIAGARA SUICIDE

NIAGARA FALLS, Ontario, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—A coat found on the Niagara River shore just off the Canadian boulevard above the Horseshoe Falls on Monday noon was identified today as that of J. J. Fitzpatrick, Pittsburgh, Pa. The identification was made by Fitzpatrick's wife, who came here from Pittsburgh last night. Notes found with the coat were in Fitzpatrick's handwriting, Mrs. Fitzpatrick told police.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick, police said, declared that her husband left home September 1 and that she had received only one letter from him since. This was postmarked Toronto. Police said Mrs. Fitzpatrick was convinced her husband had ended his life by going over the Canadian cataract. The letter received by her from Fitzpatrick, police said, mentioned another woman and hinted at suicide. Mrs. Fitzpatrick returned to Pittsburgh, leaving instructions to have the body sent to that city when recovered. No trace of it has been found in the lower river.

Margie Returns to Newport To Urge Dan Shevlin to Care for Carlotta

"YES. No, I don't know. But—but it might do some good. You could make him stop from going on blackmailing, maybe. Oh, Margie, that would make me happy!"

"I don't know. . . ."

Carlotta had caught her hands, was speaking earnestly, beseechingly.

"You've got to come back with me. I tell you I can't stand it all alone. I'll go mad if I have to worry out things and not have a soul to speak to. I don't dare talk to Mark. Sometimes—sometimes I'm afraid my own brother hates me. . . . Margie, tell me you'll come back with me and do what you said you would!"

"All right," said Margie suddenly. "I suppose you want to get back as soon as possible?"

"Tonight. There's no time to lose. Margie, some day I'll help you—I really will, even though now I can't even help myself!"

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

WAS she really on her way back? The thought had drummed in her ears all night long on the sleeper. Newport—to which, she thought, she had said goodby for always—Newport lay ahead of her.

In Margie's dreams, between sleep and waking, there moved hazily doubts as to whether all this was not actually a nightmare. What did the girls think anyway? Her sudden, mysterious [illegible], her mysterious arrivals and absences, and never any explanations for them! Florence [illegible] had been round and [illegible]. Billie Graham had picked at the arm of her chair and not looked up. What discussions they must be having about her, what speculations But they were fond of her, every one of them, and loyal to her. She was glad to know that they lived, and wished that some day she might be able to show how grateful she was for their simple affection.

Less simple was the world into which she was now going, and less happy. Why was she going to try to do this thing?

Why, actually, the best possible thing that could happen to Carlotta Brooke was to have Shevlin desert her. Best, yes; but Carlotta didn't think so, and wildly as she had spoken, there was no doubt she would prefer to die if Shevlin went away. When someone loved like that, it didn't matter whether it was good or bad or what happened. There wasn't any good or bad—there was just the intense, devouring thing itself.

But Margie wasn't going to face Dan Shevlin for that. Was it in the hopes of seeing him change color, plead with her, weaken and falter?

"Maybe I'm just revengeful—it must be that!" she thought. Certainly there was a deep, secret pleasure in the idea of Dan Shevlin's cringing before her. Her mind flew on to the things she would say, the cold, crisp things, with her voice determined and icy. . . .

Dawn rose on the junction platform, and the local train rattled them in to Newport itself. Carlotta with sleepy but cheerful eyes looked out of the window, prattled about everything. She seemed to have forgotten her wretchedness, seemed like a child to have freed herself of her burden the moment she had shifted it to Margie's shoulders. Perhaps it was her very childlike quality, along with her sophisticated and worldly knowledge, that made her so appealing.

The sun was higher when Mrs. Brooke's car wheeled into the side street from Bellevue avenue. The little drive with its graceful trees, the white, well-ordered colonial house again — Margie looked at it half tenderly, as if she were revisiting some place in her youth, long after its memories had grown pale.

It seemed so long ago that she had come here, with reckless schemes in her head, so long ago that she had met Jerry down in the harbor, had driven from this very door at his side in the battered old Ford.

She was a little tense as she followed a servant into the house.

"No, madam, Mr. Shevlin is not here."

"Not here?" Carlotta's voice was shrill with excitement.

"He went out last night. He hasn't returned yet. His bags are still here, madam."

"Oh!" Carlotta looked relieved. "We want some breakfast of course. Right away. Will you see to that, please?"

She went upstairs with Margie. "Come in here, darling. Use that mirror . . . Dan's been out all night gambling probably. Or else Adrian Martin has come back, and he's seen him. When I think of Adrian Martin sometimes I'm afraid."

"What does he want with Adrian Martin?" Margie asked. She remembered the millionaire, the heavy man with his heavy, clever eyes and his slow drawl of ironic speech.

"What would he want—except money. It's something about that thing he learned from you—that South American thing of course."

They breakfasted in the sunny, long room, Carlotta chatting now as if she hadn't a care in the world.

But Margie was tense, uncertain. In the clear daylight what she had come to do seemed harder, more impossible. . . . She drew in her breath sharply as she heard the front door open and recognized Shevlin's tread.

His eyes were streaked and his face looked swollen, as if the night had been spent in a cloud of tobacco smoke, with chips clicking under his ringed fingers, and a decanter of brandy at his elbow. But his usual insolence had not deserted him. Margie had begun to think that it was a point of pride with Shevlin never to display the least surprise at anything.

"If it isn't Margie," he exclaimed. "I knew you'd come straight to me—I knew it! You'd say: 'Poor old Dan—breaking his heart for me!' and then you'd realize how cruel you had been to me and come with tears in your eyes." He slumped heavily into a chair, throwing a glance of amusement at Carlotta as she winced.

"Or is it some other reason," he went on. "Don't tell me Carlotta's been saying things about me! Now you mustn't believe Carlotta—she's imaginative."

He poured out a cup of coffee. Margie said nothing. Let him laugh, let him enjoy himself. It would be all the better when she told him her resolve.

He drank the coffee at a gulp. "And now for bed," he announced.

"I'd like to see you first," Margie said quickly.

"Here I am!"

"Alone—if you don't mind. Where—where he won't be overheard."

"With pleasure. We'll lock ourselves in the reception room. But you'll be brief, I hope. Remember I haven't had much sleep."

He yawned, but his eyes had grown more alert in spite of that. He sat down in the reception room, his long legs thrust out before him, his hands pressed lazily together in front of his mouth.

"Well, my dear? . . ."

"Carlotta tells me you mean to leave her. I think you're not going to. I think also you're going to stop—all these things you've been doing."

"Do you now? Well, that's interesting. What makes you think so?"

Margie leaned forward. "Because if you don't," she said quietly and impressively, "I'll tell everything I know."

"Tell everything you know?"

"To the police. Tell them you're a blackmailer. You don't think that would be hard for me to prove, do you?"

For a moment of incredulous silence, Shevlin met her eyes.

Then to her utter dismay and amazement, he burst into a wild guffaw of laughter. Throwing back his head, he laughed helplessly and without the slightest sign of fear.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

"I SEE," said Margie grimly, after a pause, "so you don't believe I would tell, do you?"

Shevlin shook his head weakly. "No, my dear, frankly I don't."

"You know you're rather stupid," she said angrily at that. "I should think you'd be able to feel how sincere I am."

"Oh, you're sincere enough—you really mean to tell. You're quite reckless enough to."

"Then what makes you think I won't?" Margie demanded in bewilderment.

"I'm afraid you haven't thought things out sufficiently."

Margie shook her head. "Is there any reason why I should hesitate?"

"One or two. In the first place how do you think you could prove anything?"

"Prove—that wouldn't be hard!"

"Well, you don't think the people you named would admit the truth of what you said, do you? Why, the amount of capital and the number of lawyers I would have defending me would astonish you!"

"It wouldn't matter," Margie said bravely, though in the face of his amused indifference, she felt less sure of herself now. "I'd tell the truth—I'd tell everything—and in the end I'd be believed."

"Perhaps you would," he admitted. "Perhaps you would."

Shevlin was baffling her as he always did. It seemed impossible that anyone could be so cool and undisturbed. It couldn't be mere acting—there was something behind this manner of his that made her threat seem now so puny. And she had dreamed of watching him lose color, stammer out a plea for mercy!

"Very well, then," she said at last, "then you admit I can stop you. You admit I could have you arrested and sent to prison."

Shevlin laughed gently. "My dear Margie, if I weren't so tired, I'd enjoy this conversation immensely. But as it is, I shall have to end it. What you don't seem to have realized is what would happen if you really made a fuss about all this."

He gestured lazily. "You see, Margie, I wouldn't be the only victim. There are the Carlton-Groves, for instance—nice young people. Now I dare say it would come out that young Mrs. Carlton-Grove had been indiscreet in her youth. She's very happy at the present time, and very fond of her husband. What do you suppose it would do to her life to have her husband find out, the world find out what I know? I won't multiply instances. All I'm trying to point out is that in harming me, you would harm much more greatly a number of people whom you have no grudge against. And then there's Carlotta—expose me, and you expose her. We would probably be together the rest of lives—in the same jail!"

He rose with a nod, and as if a reply were unimportant, strolled to the door.

And Margie sat there with a sick feeling of having been badly beaten. For she knew that what he had said was true. She couldn't punish him with exposure, without punishing a number of other people, too, people whose secrets he held with so tight a grip.

All at once she wondered why she had come here, why she had allowed Carlotta to persuade her. She felt angry and humiliated. But when she went upstairs and saw Carlotta's anxious face, the inquiry that was written there so plainly, she forgot her irritation and was sorry.

"I can't do anything, Carlotta. I've tried. I guess it's no use hoping to stop him."

Mrs. Brooke rose and walked nervously to the window.

"But you haven't tried—you haven't really tried! Oh, don't listen to me, Margie. I know you've tried, but don't leave me! If you knew what a comfort it was to have you here! And something may happen—you're so clever—you'll get an idea—you'll tell me what to do—"

From the corridor a voice came to their ears, a heavy, angry voice, dominant and accusing. Mrs. Brooke flung the door open.

On the landing Margie made out Shevlin standing there menacingly. Confronting him with a white face was Mark Trelaw. Mark Trelaw—Margie had almost forgotten the strange solitary cripple—Mrs. Brooke's brother.

She had not seen him until now, had almost forgotten he existed. In his eyes there was a look of something so vindictive that it frightened her.

"Get out of the way and keep out," Shevlin said in a bullying accent. "Sneaking around—spying—by heaven, if I catch you again going through my papers—!"

"I'll try to see that you don't catch me," said Mark Trelaw with a sneer.

Shevlin had lifted his fist, and Trelaw flung up his withered arm as if to defend himself.

Mrs. Brooke was at Shevlin's side, and she was trying helplessly to drag him back.

"Dan, don't—Dan, please!"

But Trelaw stood his ground. "I'm not afraid of you, Dan Shevlin," he said. "You know that, don't you? And you don't like it—you woman-beater!"

Then Carlotta screamed, and before Margie's eyes, while Shevlin's face darkened, she saw him swing back his arm. Mark Trelaw swayed dizzily at the head of the stairs for one instant, then he toppled back and went crashing down the length of the staircase, to lie in a pitiful, crumpled heap in the lower hall.

Margie ran, but Carlotta was before her, bending over her brother with anguished eyes.

"Mark—Mark—are you hurt? Say you're not hurt! Oh, that beast, that beast!" She glanced up, but Shevlin had disappeared.

Trelaw moistened his lips with his tongue. His eyes looked blank and expressionless. Then he shook his head.

"He hasn't killed me—yet," he said in a grim whisper. "It's all right, Carlotta."

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Finds Herself Locked in a Deserted Office Building With Philip Veritzen.

BESIDES Otto, the chauffeur, the Veritzen limousine had but one occupant, and that the great theatrical producer himself. Indeed, there would have been room for no one else because of the many pieces of luggage which surrounded him.

At the sight of the car I instantly slowed my gait, sternly repressing an impulse to turn and scurry away. The next instant the car had stopped, and Otto, moving briskly, yet with the dignity befitting the attendant of a potentate, had descended from his seat and opened the door for his distinguished master, who reached the pavement in front of his offices just as I came abreast of them. I had time to notice only that he was looking unusually well—the bronze tint his face had acquired suited him eminently—and that he was groomed as meticulously as ever. Then he caught sight of me, and instantly breaking off his instructions to the chauffeur, crossed at once to my side.

"How delightful that yours is the first welcoming face I see," he exclaimed, bending over my outstretched hand and kissing it in the foreign fashion which he invariably uses in all his salutations to women, but which I always find embarrassing. When he finally relinquished my hand it was with a rapidly murmured apology for leaving me long enough to speak to his chauffeur.

"Take the things up to the house, Otto," he directed crisply, "and leave them all except my emergency bag. Then come back here and wait."

I drew a relieved breath. This did not look as if Mr. Veritzen contemplated a long session at his offices, after all. He probably had an engagement with some friend or professional associate out in the country. His mention of his emergency bag indicated such a plan. The sight of that bag was a familiar one. Rumor said that its roomy depths held the simple requirement for an overnight stay if he, by any chance, was prevented from returning to his own home on one of his frequent country drives, and for the rest was crammed with manuscripts, notes, blank paper, pencils and sketching materials, that he might be equipped for work at any moment the whim for industry should seize him. It was said that he never entered his car without assuring himself that the bag was in place, for often, if the drive were only for an hour or two, some idea which needed working out would flash upon him and he would write as the car bore him through the smooth drives of Central Park and the length of Riverside.

I had scant time, however, for speculation as to my employer's purpose. His directions to Otto finished, he turned back to me.

"You are wonderfully prompt," he said as we walked the few steps to the portal of the building.

"But, then, you always are."

There was a gratifying approval in his voice, but I knew that if I had kept him waiting those kindly tones would have changed to intonations resembling the grating of the key which he took from an exquisitely tooled leather case and fitted into the lock, and which for an instant appeared to prove untrustworthy.

But it was open at last, and Mr. Veritzen pushed back the heavy door and held it while I entered. Then he assured himself that it was locked again and swung his arm toward the stairs apologetically.

"It is fortunate that our offices are only upon the third floor," he said. "Even so, I hate asking you to climb these stairs."

"I do not mind them in the least," I assured him, truthfully, but as I followed him up their winding, broad steps I told myself that I did mind absurdly enough the sensation I had of being locked in with Philip Veritzen in a deserted office building.

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, [illegible] bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

HARD WATER PLUS MELO MAKES SOFT WATER

This little finger went "Ugh, Ugh!"

So pm all ten fingers. For they were on hands which were washing dishes in hard, hard water. The soap wouldn't lather; grease and scum formed; and the poor hands were getting rough and red.

Soft water—made soft by Melo—wouldn't treat hands that way. Soft water will lather; grease and scum won't collect around the edge of the dishpan, and the hands won't get rough and red. They'll stay smoother and whiter in soft water, just as they should. Has Melo been used in your dishpan? Get it at your grocer's.

Wife of Late Czar's Former Prime Minister in Hollywood Looking for English Players

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,

Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 16.

"YOU must meet such interesting people in your work," has become such a prevalent phrase that it is now classed among the great Hollywood bromides. The most interesting and unexpectedly interesting woman I have met in many a day is here representing the British Standard Film Company, in search of English-born talent. Ye Gods! what a story that woman can relate. Her name is Princess Frances Golitzine, and she is the wife of the last prime minister of the Czar's court.

She is virtually a woman without a country, although born in America. As a refugee she has served a sentence in Siberia, been decorated seven times, and has had the heartache of seeing her husband try to eke out a living cobbling shoes.

She drifted to England and now has some substantial English capital, so I am told, backing her. At the moment, she is visiting the Hollywood studios, studying American pictures, and when she gets an American release she will sail for England with a director, scenario writer and players. England wants her to bring back 25 per cent of their own countrymen, and in looking the field over she finds it won't be difficult—there are many English folk in the film colony.

History repeats itself in the movies. Some years ago Charlie Chaplin made a burlesque on "Carmen." It was one of his funniest pictures. There is now at the Sennett Company another burlesque of "Carmen" in progress. This one deals with a girls' school and a play, "Carmen," produced solely by girls—the bull, Escamilla and Jose are all of feminine gender. In the cast is Daphne Pollard, Carole Lombard and Alma Bennett, with Alf Goulding directing. Someone, in a hysterical moment, suggested that it ought to be called "The Legs of Carmen." This was the nom de plume given by a wise-cracking member of the Hollywod colony when "The Loves of Carmen" made its appearance."

They all come back; that is, if they have real talent and ability. That's why the friends of Arline Pretty aren't surprised that she has been invited by Darryl Zanuck, of Warner Brothers, to play one of the important feminine roles in "Tenderloin," Dolores Costello's next picture. Arline for a time wrote scenarios. A worthy ambition, we admit, but all the time she had a hankering to return to the screen, and when Michael Curtiz, who is the directorial genius of "Tenderloin," saw her, he decided that he wasn't making a mistake. Arline, who is blonde, young, and not unlike her name in appearance, appeared in many pictures before she decided upon a career as a writer. Well, here's hoping she will appear in many more.

Some years ago Leo Ditrichstein appeared in a play called "The Purple Mask," a mystery melodrama. Now, it is to be brought to the screen as a special by Roland West, who is an expert in presenting mystery dramas. The cast will be chosen later and undoubtedly one of our well-known character actors will be invited to play the mask.

A newsy, happy letter received from Charlie Ray contains news of his own plans and those of his talented wife, Clara. The Rays are in New York and apparently enjoying life these days. Mr. Ray has been engaged to do a play which Charlie describes as an Elsie Ferguson type. Charlie is having a play written for him by Patrick Kearney, author of the dramatization of "The American Tragedy." Although there have been vaudeville offers galore, Charlie has come to the conclusion that the legitimate stage is the thing and both he and Mrs. Ray are going to try their wings before the footlights.

The breakfast tendered Prince Wilhelm of Sweden on his arrival Sunday morning brought out a number of film celebrities. If you counted Swedish members of the film colony here, you would discover that next to the Hungarians, their population is the greatest. Nils Aster, Victor Seastrom and Maurice Stiller were among those present and, needless to say, there was no time lost in talking their native tongue. I sometimes wonder at the facility with which these foreigners learn our language.

Don't visit Universal City while the fair is in progress if you expect to get back the same day. I went out to see this Southgate Fair, a part of the set in "The Man Who Laughs," and I nearly didn't return in time to write this column. There are 700 extras, a merry-go-round, a zoo, a side show and a carnival attended by the greatest assortment of people I have ever seen on any set. Paul Leni, the director, has a whole corps of assistants and he needs them for the set covers an enormous area. Stewart Holmes, in a curious costume, was the chief cause of the commotion. Mary Philbin and Conrad Veidt, who play the leading roles, had just left the set. The film has already been in production eight weeks. The expense will probably be another one of those worries, but it looks like a good picture. How can I tell? Oh, I am a prophet.

Sadie in Films -:- Ride 'im, Pals -:- "Necking" Party

SADIE THOMPSON, Jeanne Eagels' stage pet in "Rain," has reached the screen. Gloria Swanson is doing the movie Sadie in a picture entitled "Sadie Thompson." Miss Swanson and Raoul Walsh, the director, who also portrays a Marine in the film, are in the photograph.

HERE WE HAVE a rustic version of the Coolidge mechanical horse, demonstrated by Molly O'Day. The gate bobs up and down as it swings. Molly is in costume for her role in "The Shepherd of the Hills."

WHEN GOOD FELLOWS get together might be the caption of this photo. It shows the youthful Joseph Bennett and three of his dumb pals of the sheep range. This unique quartet lends support to Molly O'Day, Alex Francis and John Boles in "The Shepherd of the Hills."

OUT IN THE GREAT big West, where men are men and women know it, Ann Rork and Louise Fazenda revive the old custom of neck stretching. This was the type of "necking" party that was once popular in certain localities. The girls are in "The Texas Steer."

That Ends Mr. CORN!

A touch of "Freezone" and he lifts right off!

The most painful corn, even one sensitive to touch of stocking, can't throb ten seconds after "Freezone" comes in contact. All that's left to do, is lift corn right off, and it's gone!

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs only a few cents at any drug store, and is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, corn between the toes and callouses. Try it—today!

Star's Wife Gets Laugh from Epitaph

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 16.—The vivacious and popular wife of Douglas MacLean is back from a visit to her family in a small town in New York state. While there, her mother insisted that she visit the cemetery. She confesses to being bored to tears until her eyes lighted on an old, stained monument with this epitaph: "He fought whisky for 20 years." She let out a shriek of merriment. "Why are you laughing, Faith," asked her mother, in some surprise. "It's the funniest thing I ever read," she said between gasps of unrestrained laughter. "I don't see why," replied her mother, "he was a God-fearing man, and besides he was the minister who married your father and me."

What's this new dish?.. A Muffet!

It's light as a patty shell. Its crinkly top is butternut-browned. It nestles in your cereal dish as if made to order!

It's pure whole wheat. Firm, meaty grains, cooked, drawn out to a ribbon so filmy thin, so fine-spun, there's three whole yards, wound round and round, to every Muffet! Toasted crunchier than toast itself! Crumbles in the mouth like oven-crisped crackers.

All whole wheat's health qualities—vitamins, calories, bran. Easy digestibility. And, best of all, corking good to eat!

Serve Muffets at breakfast tomorrow, with cream and sugar. Or add fruit. Enjoy one yourself, and get an extra treat out of watching the rest of the family enjoy them! The Quaker Oats Co., Chicago.

SPORT COMMENT
by
JAMES J. LONG

NO doubt the major league baseball advisory council did much for the good of the game in revising and changing certain regulations during its organization meeting in Chicago, but in the opinion of many thinking fans the council made a serious mistake in tampering with the laws affecting the disabled player list and the club limit.

Under the old rule each major league club was permitted to carry 40 players except between June 15 and August 31, during which period the limit was fixed at 25.

Clubs were compelled to abide by that limit of 25 players, no matter what came or went.

If a player became disabled his club had to go along with only 24 serviceable men. If two became disabled the team was required to play its schedule with only 23 athletes, and so on.

The disability of a player did not permit a club to take on another man in his place.

But the advisory council has now ruled, or proposes to rule, that a disabled player list for each club shall be created. An injured or sick player can be transferred to the disabled list, and another man signed to take his place on the active roster thus adding a twenty-sixth man.

The danger lies in the fact that the rule opens the way for "cheating," and any rule that breaks up an air-tight situation and makes such "cheating" possible cannot be called a regulation for the good of the game.

The 25-player limit was one of the fairest rules in the book, because there was no way to beat it or to get around it. Each club had to take its own chances on illness or injury.

But with a "disabled" list and an extra player provided for by the new rule, what is to prevent any club in the mid-season heat of a pennant race from taking an inferior player out of the game, putting him on the "disabled" list and then buying and running in a much better player to take his place?

IT is proposed to bar the disabled player for 60 days, to make a club hesitate about taking the step, but what's an extra ball player's salary for two months to rich clubs that are seeking an advantage over rival teams?

The poorer clubs may not be able to afford such trickery, but there is nothing to prevent the wealthy ones from beating the rules or faking a "disabled" player and then spending some money for an extra player.

When the rich clubs are given such advantages the result is apt to be a spoiled pennant race, and without a real race no season can be a success.

The old rule was a guarantee against cheating. The new one makes cheating possible. Wherein is the wisdom of the change?

THERE may be times when you do not hear or read a great deal about Andy Guarino, Pitt's right end, because some of the other Panther players are crowding the spotlight, but, just the same, you may set it down as a fact that the Greensburg boy is up to his ears in every game and has been one of the strongest factors in the success of the Panther team this season.

Guarino is not the fastest man on the squad, but the fact that he is such a good end in spite of not being overly fleet—and speed is supposed to be one of the main requisites of a star terminal man—goes to show all the more convincingly his exceptional qualities in other departments.

ANDY is particularly brilliant at receiving forward passes, having such an uncanny knack of being at the right spot to catch the ball that one old football man remarked at a recent game:

"Take the average number of passes caught in a season, and I'll bet that that boy's mark is mighty close to the best percentage of Ben-

SOCCER
by TOM BIRKS

WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA has some tough fights marked with bitterness in the past 10 years, but it is hardly possible that anything like the present controversy over the Pittsburgh Soccer Club and the Pittsburgh Celtics case ever came up for consideration. The case is so absurdly one-sided that it is going to make Western Pennsylvania again the mouthpiece of the nation's soccer gossip. The latest angle introduced into the case is that the referee who handled that game is incompetent. That ought to get a good laugh from the referee's association, for after 19 years of services some disgruntled group comes out with the stigma of incompetence against an official who had one fault, that was to mete out penalties where they were deserved.

Jimmie Sherrard was a capable soccer referee when refereeing soccer games out in the mining camps was no joy ride, present officials probably did not see Sherrard working under those conditions. Well, the writer did and it is absolutely true that Sherrard compared then and does yet with any referee in the country.

While the writer did not see the incident that led to the calling of the game, 25 minutes of the poorest soccer ever displayed by any team in the district was looked over. And nobody blamed Sherrard when fans on the sidelines started heckling the players.

Someone is trying to prove a referee incompetent because he removed players from the game. Sherrard at that time was probably the only unbiased person on the field of play, and before he removed any player it can be taken for granted that he knew just what he was about. The case was open and shut at the first hearing, and the charge of the incompetence should have been thrown out without little or any consideration.

The case stands thus, the referee had awarded a penalty kick, and defending players promptly kicked the ball out of the lot, there was not a chance of Sherrard finishing the game, so he called it and walked off the field, just as the writer has done in years past. And now it is up to the powers-that-be to back his stand in the interests of clean soccer.

PITTSBURGH TEAMS ALL MAY GO WEST

By JESS CARVER.

AT a time when old Joe Football should be packing up and preparing to traipse behind the scenes for another year, the collegiate gridiron situation in the tri-state section is rousing itself from a somewhat lethargic state into which it fell as the supremacy of Pitt and Wash-Jeff was assured early in the season and threatening to boil over with a vim.

First, the Dukes start working toward a post-season game in the West and apparently have completed plans for just such a game—with University of Denver at Denver, December 2. Then Pitt and Wash-Jeff look forward to receiving the bid from the Rose Bowl committee to play the cream of the West in the annual Tournament of Roses intersectional struggle at Pasadena on New Year's Day. Carnegie Tech prepares to wind up its season with games against Western elevens, playing Detroit here Saturday and then traveling to Oregon for a game with the Oregon Aggies.

And from out of the Beaver Valley comes the misty rumor that the Covenanters of Geneva are planning to challenge Pitt to a post-season game, with the honors of the tri-state section at stake.

Both Pitt and Wash-Jeff will accept the Rose Bowl bid if it is tendered them. The Panther authorities will welcome the opportunity to show their crack eleven on the west coast, and Wash-Jeff would like to get out there again and mark up a win in place of the tie game they played out there a few years ago as evidence of their best efforts.

The Dukes expect to close negotiations with Denver sometime today, thus assuring their participa-

SHOTS and PASSES
—by Julius Levin

NEXT Monday night the Goldenson Furnitures, of the Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League, will travel to Braddock to meet the American Legion quintet representing that town on the floor this winter in a pre-season contest that promises to test the mettle of the South Siders.

The American Legion management has lined up a powerful team this winter, including Lacey, last year with Schwartz-Valley; Wolfe, Homestead High center; Tom Evans, likewise a former Homestead High star; Martin, Schweinberg, Zuke and House. These boys have stood out in tri-borough basketball circles for years and their presence in the American Legion lineup should make that club a big drawing card hereabouts.

MEMBERS of the Webster Hall basketball team, entered in the West Penn League, will be tendered a banquet tomorrow night in Webster Hall. The Oaklanders, although making their debut in amateur basketball this winter, have rounded up a classy floor aggregation and are likely to be in the thick of the running for the West Penn League title.

The Webster Hall passers are scheduled to open their West Penn League schedule Friday night with the Knickerbockers of Lawrenceville as their opponents.

With five practice games under their belts, the Webster Hall passers should be in excellent shape for the inaugural. The Knickers likewise are reported in fine fettle for the opener. All indications point to a fast and hard-fought engagement.

While the Knickers and Webster Hall open the season on Friday, the others do not swing into action until the next night, Trinity playing at Sharpsburg Y and Kingsley House at Heinz House.

JOHN J. FREUND, JR., is working out details for a railroad league this winter. So far he has received applications from the Baltimore and Ohio, Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh and Lake Erie and McKeesport Connecting. Freund also is working on the major Catholic Lyceum League, as well as two Catholic Lyceum junior circuits.

DRIBBLES

The Catholic Lyceum League will operate on a split-season basis this winter, the first half of the schedule opening on December 5.

Members of the Allegheny County League will be required to post forfeits of $200 this winter. Last year's forfeit was $50. Fans are eagerly awaiting the final makeup of this strong circuit, last year one of the best operating in this section.

The Siano Club of the Hill district, a member of the Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League, is hard at work for the opening battle of the season. The Sianos and Mieles, last year's champions, have been holding scrimmages at Columbus Temple.

Mock Linton, manager of the Young Men's Hebrew Association quintet, is mapping out an extensive schedule for his passers this winter. Besides meeting the leading Y. M. C. A. teams hereabouts, the Bellefielders are booked for games with several members of the West Penn League. Basketball is making rapid strides at the Y. M. H. A., judging by the number of candidates out for the team.

WILKINSBURG CANCELS WESTINGHOUSE BATTLE

THROUGH the SPORT LENS
by
HAVEY BOYLE

THE average man, knowing little about it, notices in the paper that a fox hunt was held recently. Do you know anything about a fox hunt? Well, neither did I until a recent participant in one told me something about it.

HAVEY BOYLE

A group of 40 or 50 hunters, all mounted of course, set out after the poor fox. In the van of the hunters is a pack of rapacious dogs which pick up the scent, lead the way, until at last the fox is tracked down. The dogs pounce upon the fox, rendering the once sly animal quite inanimate. So far this not so unusual, but there is a pretty little ceremony which takes place after the dogs have done their work.

The head huntsman goes after the fox and performs a rite, which is more or less bloody. After this is done the head hunter then dips his fingers in the blood of the fox and with gory fingers rubs the cheek of the youngest hunter in the party. He makes an x on the cheek of the young hunter, the big idea, as we reason it, being to initiate the youngest hunter.

It is a pastime enjoyed mainly only by the rich, since fox-hunting is not an inexpensive affair. The boys and girls on horseback go riding through farmers' fields, over farmers' fences, and through barns and the farmers are not so interested in the capture of the fox that they will pass up the damage done. So the farmers are paid well by the hunters for the damage wrought.

The foxes are bred and turned loose in the vicinity of the hunting club so that there will always be a fox fairly convenient for the dogs and the pretty girls and their escorts to find.

The yelp of the dogs, the clatter of hoofs, spills galore, and at last the roundup of the fox, the scene at the death, and the strange ritual, all are a part of the country life that city boys and girls know little about.

Foxes always have suffered poor reputations. In the lore handed down by students of nature the fox is termed, if not sinister entirely, then deceitful, and certainly sly. But even remembering this reputation of the fox family, and even remembering the thwarted one who was not honest enough to admit he wanted the grapes when he could not reach them, it seems here that the hunters don't give the fox a chance good enough. Obviously some way should be arranged so that the fox, too, would have some dogs and horses and men on his side. Better would be a plan to equip the fox with a gun so he could take a shot on his own account. He at least should have one free shot at the posse pursuing him. It is not

RELATIONS BROKEN BY ELEVEN

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

THE folks who set their hearts in the gridiron warfare of the Westinghouse and Wilkinsburg High schools received something of a blow yesterday when it was learned that patched-up relations between the schools had been broken no sooner than mended—and all through a secret ballot on the part of the Holy City players.

Faculty officials of the two schools got together and arranged a game for November 26 after 10 years of non-competition, although prior to that no schools in this district were more traditional rivals. And each community was quite pleased with the prospect; the outlook was indeed interesting, for both have exceptionally strong machines this year.

But something was wrong somewhere. The Wilkinsburg team took a secret ballot upon learning of the booking of Westinghouse, and advised the faculty officials who had arranged the contest, that they did not wish to play it, according to an authoritative source.

It seems they were willing to play next year—but this year? No, they couldn't do that. We wouldn't care to think that the Holy City boys feared for their own record, although that is just possible, inasmuch as Westinghouse has one of the best scholastic football teams this year that has played on local gridirons in many a day. And it will be just as good next year from the present outlook.

Now Westinghouse must go hunting for another W. P. I. A. L. team to fill the date, so that it may complete its schedule and figure in the league standing. Wilkinsburg has evidently backed out—and we lay that to the team—so it is hard to say who will take their place.

On Friday Westinghouse clashes with Oliver at Forbes Field for the championship of the City League, and possession of the two football championship cups, one the regular trophy and the other the Union Acceptance donation. The Section I and II victors are in prime shape for the battle, although the Silver Lakers seem to have an edge on Coach Red Dennis' crew.

The other feature game of the week comes on Saturday at Graham Field, Wilkinsburg, where the stalwart warriors of Turtle Creek Union buck Wilkinsburg High School's machine. It is anticipated that one of the largest crowds of the season will turn out, inasmuch as the schools are traditional rivals of long standing.

Coach Horween Will Remain At Harvard

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 16.—Arnold Horween has agreed to return to Cambridge in 1928 for another year as head coach of Harvard football, William J. Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard announced last night.

A statement from the director's office said thatt he announcement of Horween's reappointment held "special gratification" for Director Bingham, inasmuch as his confidence in his original choice of Horween as head coach two years ago has not been shaken by the gridiron reverses the Crimson has encountered under the Horween regime.

Horween's record at Cambridge has not been particularly impressive. In his first year last year his teams lost five of the eight games, including the Yale encounter, winning from Williams and Mary, Dartmouth and Tufts.

This season the Crimson gridders have won half their games, triumphing and losing on alternate Saturdays. They will be put to their most severe test on Saturday when they renew their feud with Yale.

HELEN WILLS

QUEEN OF COURTS CHANGES PLAYING STYLE

Helen Wills, the world's leading woman tennis player, is keeping in condition these fine November days by practicing daily on the courts of the Berkeley (Cal.), Tennis Club, where the above photo was snapped. Miss Wills has changed her style completely. She no longer depends so much on her severe drive, but varies her game and suits it to the type of opponent she is facing. She should prove even more formidable than ever next season.

M'COY FOULS IMPERIAL, GIVEN KNOCKOUT WIN

FRESNO, Cal., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Johnny McCoy, recognized by the California Boxing Commission as flyweight champion of the world, was given a fifth-round knockout victory over Fredy Imperial here last night in face of what ringsiders said was an apparent foul which sent the Filipino down.

After the referee had left the ring a physician examined Imperial and declared he had been fouled.

DAVE BLACK SPURNS BERTH AS MANAGER

CUMBERLAND, Md., Nov. 16.—Dave Black of Pittsburgh, second baseman of the Cumberland Colts, champions of the Middle Atlantic League for 1927, when asked here today if it were true that he had accepted the managerial reins of the Cumberland team for next year, said he never cared for the job and would turn it down if offered to him. He prefers playing to managing.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS
by HARRY KECK
SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

IT SEEMS as if it were only yesterday that the football season of 1927 got under way, and here it is within a week or two of its finish. Princeton and Yale have tangled and Harvard and Yale get together Saturday. There will be no Princeton-Harvard meeting this year because of the fall-out between the two institutions. Thus one of the regular features of the curtain-dropping will be missing, but otherwise the windup is about the same as usual. Just another big game or two in each section and the season will be a closed book and the boys will be back arguing the Cuyler case and Tunney's long count all over again.

MANY of the leading college elevens will be idle next Saturday, resting up for the season's grand finales on Thanksgiving Day. Pitt, Wash-Jeff, Penn State, West Virginia, Grove City and Thiel are the teams in this section that will enjoy a day off this week-end. Carnegie Tech plays Detroit at Forbes Field and then goes West for a battle with the Oregon Aggies at Portland the following Saturday in what will be its last gesture of the campaign. The Dukes conclude their schedule with Ashland College at Ashland, O., Saturday, and then may go through with one of the contemplated post-season contests in the West. Pitt will store away its paraphernalia after the State game on Turkey Day unless it is invited to compete in the Tournament of Roses feature, and the same thing goes for Wash-Jeff, which will close its records on the feast day with West Virginia unless it gets the Rose tourney bid. Geneva finishes up with Thiel Saturday and Thiel comes back against Grove City Thanksgiving Day. Waynesburg winds up with Bethany Saturday and Allegheny with New York University at New York the same day. West Virginia Wesleyan plays Marshall College in its farewell Thanksgiving Day.

SATURDAY will be a comparatively drab football day, in view of the tasty dishes of the last few weeks and the big ones to follow on the holiday. What few features are on the cards are billed for the Middle and Far West. Michigan plays Minnesota, Stanford tackles California, Ohio State meets Illinois, Northwestern plays Iowa and Chicago engages Wisconsin. In the East, Fordham plays Georgetown and Lehigh and Lafayette, old rivals, but with poor records this year, clash again. Army, Navy, Syracuse, Notre Dame and other strong teams all encounter opponents that are more or less set-ups.

JACK SHARKEY got a bum "break" all the way 'round when he fractured a finger the other day and had to call off his match with Tom Heeney, scheduled for Madison Square Garden Friday night. DETROIT SUBDUES BUCS IN OPENER

By CARL W. SHATTO.

DISPLAYING a paper mache defense and an attack that was slightly less potent than near beer, the Pittsburgh ice Pirates went down to a humiliating 6 to 0 defeat at the hands of the Detroit Cougars in the opening game of the National Hockey League's 1927-28 season at Duquesne Garden last night.

At that, the Pirates lived up to their names after a fashion, for they looted the confidence and plundered the enthusiasm of some 2,500 fans who turned out to witness the inaugural battle.

The Detroit score by periods reads 0—1—5, and here figures do not lie, for the tale of Cougar supremacy they tell is extremely accurate. Outplayed in every department of the game, in the first period, the Cougars rallied to take the play away from the Pirates in the second and swept to unexpected heights to crush their Pirate foemen in the third and final stanza.

Had last night's game been of one-period duration the Pirates' play would have occasioned plenty of favorable comment today. Starting out with a sustained drive that bespoke championship aspirations, built upon championship qualifications, the men of Cleghorn kept the play in Detroit territory almost throughout, and only the superb work of Goalie Holmes prevented two or three scores. Once, on a pass from Drury, White shot from within six feet of the goal mouth, and a few minutes later he captured a loose puck and let go a vicious drive from the same range. Each shot was low and accurate and to the impartial observer it appeared that there was an element of luck merged with the skill that kept the Detroit goal inviolate.

WORTERS PLAYS WELL

Capt. Worters, in the Pirate net, prevented apparently certain scores late in the period when he made extremely brilliant saves at the expense of Walker and J. Sheppard. Each time he drove forward to smother the disc as it left the ice, after the Cougars had eluded all defenders and advanced to within inches of the goal.

The Pirate teamwork in this first period was such that Holmes was called upon to make more than twice as many stops as was the Bucs

Sheehan And Zinn Star

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

TWO muscular righthanders, who played under the Dreyfuss banner, won 50 ball games this year for Kansas City, and all but won the pennant for the Blues by their Herculean efforts.

The pair of sterling sharpshooters are Tom Sheehan and Jimmy Zinn. Big Tom won 26 games and the Jack Dempsey twin reeled off 24 triumphs. And it is a coincidence that each had the same percentage—.667, Sheehan losing 13 and Zinn 12.

Tom and Jimmy were out in front of friends and foe in the matter of victories. The closest approach to them was Clarence (Bubber) Jonnard, a Milwaukee ace.

Sheehan was a prominent relief hurler for the Pirates in 1925 when the Bucs copped the National League flag and the world series.

Forbes Field patrons who saw the Pirates clinch the 1925 emblem will recall it was Sheehan who went in to relieve Emil Yde in the ninth inning of a hot battle with the Phillies. The score was 2 to 1 in the Pirates' favor, none was out, the tying run

NOTES of the BOXERS

THE fans are keenly interested in the boxing show to be held next Monday night in Motor Square Garden, following a week of fistic inactivity in that arena, and especially in view of the fact that the main bout will present those two hot local rivals, Phil Goldstein and Tommy Crowley, against each other again.

The preliminary card for Monday night is better than the usual brand, being made up two eight-round bouts and a six-rounder. Jack Horowitz of Los Angeles, who was brought East by Willie Davies and the latter's manager, Jim Buchanan, from their recent trip to the Coast, makes his local debut against Lynn Jordan, Johnstown Negro, in the eight-round semi-final and Patsy Gallagher, South Side featherweight, boxes U. S. Carpentier of New Kensington in the eight-round second bout. Monte Sirko of Oakland and Mickey Hart of New Kensington will appear in the opening bout of six rounds.

Tommy Ryan is due in today from Buffalo for his 10-round windup with Andy Tomosky of Wilmerding at McKeesport tomorrow night.

Tony Tortoise of Elizabeth and Charley Beverly of McKeesport, 122-pounders, will box in the opening bout at McKeesport tomorrow night. Stanley Simmons of Lawrenceville and Dick Gibbons of McKeesport, heavyweights, will meet in the semi-final.

Young Saylor of Charleroi and Danny Cooney of Trenton, N. J., will box the main bout of a show at Johnstown, December 12.

Jack Barry meets Johnny Carey in the 10-round main bout at Erie Friday night of next week. The winner will box Jack Zivic in the same ring, December 9.

Harry Dudley, local Negro welterweight, boxes K. O. Kelly of Barberton, O., in a 10-round bout at Akron, November 29, and then leaves for Boston for a battle with Al Mello of Lowell, Mass., at Manchester, N. H. Dudley's stablemate, Jackie Murray, boxes Jimmy Belmont of Braddock in one of the bouts at McKeesport tomorrow night, and on December 1 meets Tug Phillips in a return bout of 10-rounds in the main event of the first show of a new club which will hold forth in the Moose hall, Carnegie. Jack Craig is the promoter of the Carnegie club and would like to have managers communicate with him by calling Carnegie 779-M.

Leo Kurbersky of Swissvale and Pete Ortlieb of the North Side will box the main bout of an amateur boxing show under the auspices of the North Side A. C., in German Masonic hall, Madison avenue and Pressley street tomorrow night. Other bouts include: A. Iovino, Swissvale, vs. John Haggerty, Willow Club; J. McFadden, unattached, vs. Louis Santucci, North Side A. C.; A. Andrucci, Willow Club, vs. Mike Hogan, North Side; John Brown, Willow Club, vs. Frank Smoller, North Side, and Freddie Halsall, Swissvale, vs. Jack [illegible] w Club. Cy Siebert will nie Oosterbaan of Michigan, who is supposed to be in a class by himself."

But catching forward passes is not the only thing that Guarino does well. He is one of Pitt's best men of recent years in all other branches of end work and with another year to play for the Blue and Gold he promises to add a third brilliant chapter in 1928 to his varsity career.

Any way you measure him, Guarino is one of the real dependables on the Pitt team, and is a credit to his own present school and eleven and also to the one from which he came here—Greensburg High.

THAT it is sometimes dangerous to leave your own team to battle for itself, in the belief that it is a sure winner, and hie yourself away with the captain and star player of your eleven for the purpose of scouting a future opponent in another part of the map, is a lesson that has been experienced by nearly every football coach at one time or other, but evidently they're never too old to learn.

Glenn Warner, the immortal "Pop," is the latest to get a jolt of that sort.

Last Saturday Warner's Stanford team was to play the Santa Clara eleven, coached by Andy Walsh, former star center at Notre Dame. Pop figured that Santa Clara was something on the order of the well-known round-heeled pushover, and that Stanford could win without half trying, so he took Capt. Hal McCreery, the "zip" of the Stanford team, and went to Berkley to scout California in its clash with Washington.

WHETHER or not the scouting trip was successful remains to be seen when Stanford plays California next Saturday, but there can be no doubt as to the disaster caused in Warner's own camp by his trip, for during his absence, and with Claude Thornhill, the former Beaver Valley man coaching in Warner's place, Santa Clara pulled a surprise and walloped Stanford, 13 to 6.

Perhaps it would have happened anyhow, but you can't convince Stanford followers of that. They say it was a case of "the mouse playing while the cat was away," and if Pop does not succeed in beating California next Saturday he is likely to come in for considerable razzing.

Warner probably is willing to admit now that in football as well as baseball you can't take anything for granted.

goalie and the Pittsburgh checking was so effective that not more than a dozen times were the invaders able to advance the puck into the scoring zone. And here the tale of Pirate prowess ends, and the story of Cougar conquest begins.

As was to be expected after a blistering first period, play in the second stanza was comparatively slow. Sorties on enemy goals were started only after lengthy preliminaries and it was not until after some five minutes of play that Detroit started to attack in earnest. The Cougar drive centered around G. Hay, and this gentleman gave Worters action aplenty. Once, with Worters sprawled on the ice 10 feet out and nothing between him and the goal, the washer took a crazy bounce, jumped from the ice and almost struck Hay in the face. A few minutes later he drove the puck into the cage, but the score was not allowed. Exasperated, Hay quit shooting and started passing, and with telling effect, Cooper taking one of his assists and tallying within seven seconds of mid-period.

BUC DEFENSE CRACKS

Although Manager Odie Cleghorn rushed Pirate spares into the fight, the Cougars refused to relinquish the offensive and the Bucs' best efforts to knot the count went for naught.

In the third stanza the Pirates saw red. Unfortunately, they saw red literally rather than figuratively, for the red they saw was the repeated flashing of the red goal signal light, and not the red occasioned by anger. In the early minutes J. Sheppard and Hay tallied on neat assists from Keats and Cooper. Later the Cougars scorned assistance, Traub, Hay and J. Sheppard bewildering the Pirate defense and scoring on solo efforts from difficult angles.

The Pirate morale went down as the Cougar score went up. The Buc defense collapsed completely and attempts to score were limited to wide drives from mid-ice.

Of the many dissatisfied with the Pirate showing, none was more sorely grieved than Manager Cleghorn. Intimating that a drastic shakeup might be expected, Odie arranged to leave for Canada tonight in search of new talent. He plans to join the Bucs Saturday morning when they arrive in Ottawa.

Carnegie Tech's task, as the season draws to a close, is as difficult as it has been all season. The Tartans need a win over Detroit, and wins over Detroit are not to be had for the mere wishing—or even for the mere asking. You have to fight for 'em, and you have to play heads up football.

difficult to imagine an assembly of foxes putting scornful thumbs to more scornful noses in the direction of the hunters who fail to give the poor fox a chance to strike back.

SCOUTS report that this hunting season, meaning the annual chase for rabbits, has been quite successful. In this anual battle between man and the affrighted, timid rabbit the man always scores heavily. Of course, the man has the odds on his side, too. He is armed with a gun in case the rabbit in a tight pinch becomes obstreperous. I must admit in this I am a little prejudiced. I don't eat rabbit.

Rabbit hunters, must admit, have a good argument against me. I like steak and lamb and maybe that is why I don't take the stump on behalf of steers and lamb, who are the same set-ups for humans as the rabbit. However, it is true that men don't always kill steers just for the fun of it, whereas a rabbit, offending no one, is bumped off just to test out someone's new gun and precise eye.

However, I am a man who changes much, and the chances are that if Gib Marsh and some of the boys took me out to shoot a rabbit I'd come back declaring it is the greatest sport of all, with some sort of argument to back up the assertion.

I TRUST for today I have kept far enough away from conventional sport subjects to satisfy my best pals and at the same time my severest critics. They wedged me in a bridge game the other night. At first I thought the idea was to play bridge, but after a few rounds—and I mean of bridge—the boys began telling me how I had slumped in the matter of writing a column for the plain people.

In fact, now and then a beloved toast was tendered to the ghost of this departed column, and after that came a few threats that if I insisted on writing mainly of sports in this column that some night a hooded gang would rather around my ranch, drag me out of bed and give me the sound thrashing I deserve.

My only comeback was to beat all three gentlemen in turn at bridge, winding up the evening with a handsome profit and filling the eyes of my host and co-guests with great wonderment over my ability as a bridge player.

My only regret was that Bill Wymard was not on hand to see with what consummate ease I would run game, offensively, and double effectively on the defensive side.

Sheehan, aided by Wright's heroic fielding, retired the side without allowing another score and the pennant was ours.

NOTABLES GATHER TO HEAR CASE

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 16—(UP.)—A jury to pass upon the troubles of Jack Kearns and Jack Dempsey was completed this afternoon in Federal Court here.

Kearns' suit against the former heavyweight champion for $333,333.33, allegedly due under a contract by which Kearns became Dempsey's manager, went to trial at the opening of court, with both Kearns and Dempsey present, smiling and suave.

Outside the courtroom a throng gathered early and fought for a chance to gain a seat inside.

Webster Hall Billiard Room Popular

Residents of Webster Hall are doing considerable "brushing up" on their game in the attractive billiard room shown above. Up-to-the-minute equipment adds to the zest of playing.

Billiards and swimming seem to be part of the daily regime at "America's Finest Club Hotel," the unique and luxurious residence for men, located at the corner of Fifth avenue and Dithridge.

By Todd W. Wright

Billiards and Webster Hall are as closely allied as water and ducks. And as one wag has phrased it, "You'll find a cue to better living at America's Finest Club Hotel!"

In the billiard room, before dinner, after dinner—in fact, during all "after office" hours—friendly groups of cue manipulators gather around the green baize table tops to exhibit their skill.

It's surprising how rapidly a "dub" learns the technique of table golf if he plays a game or two every day!

And that, in the final analysis, is the secret of success in any sport. A daily swim, a daily round of handball, a daily game of billiards. Before he knows it, the amateur finds himself becoming positively brilliant. Living at Webster Hall, he finds opportunities for daily relaxation "just around the corner" from his room. It's easy to take an interest in sport when its just a step from your door.

Men are astonished to learn that the luxuries and recreational facilities of a private athletic club can be obtained at Webster Hall at such little cost. But that has always been the aim of the management. Maximum luxury at minimum cost is the policy.

You can get a single, large, light room at Webster Hall for as little as $12 a week—others for $13 and $14. Some of the big double rooms are costing their occupants only $10 apiece a week!

The best way to prove this is to come up and see for yourself! Here is club luxury in an astonishing degree—at rentals no higher than the cost of "just a room" elsewhere!

How to Earn More Money; Readers Offer Pointers.

By B. C. FORBES

IF a man has small pay and heavy expenses, how should he go about the task of making ends meet?

A store clerk recently bared his family budget in this column, and his request for suggestions on how to stop going into debt each month has brought lots of letters. The quantity of the advice is perhaps greater than the quality.

This problem of keeping outgo within income is being wrestled with daily by millions. It is, therefore, a subject of very widespread and practical importance.

Let us see if the letters contain anything which help to point a way out.

THE head of a manufacturing and importing company, who once faced a similar dilemma, writes:

"Let him start his own business tomorrow morning.

"What? Let him find out for himself. That's best. Any man able to write that letter can do it.

"A dozen years ago I was down and out. My import business had collapsed. I had to find something absolutely new and different. I had no money—was $10,000 in debt, my credit absolutely gone. I had to let my $10,000 life insurance policy lapse and had to lose it entirely. I did not pay my taxes for three years, and house finally was sold for taxes, later redeemed. Paid off some debts at the rate of $1 a week or fortnight—whenever I had a dollar. Thus did not get any capital to work with for several years.

"We, meaning wife and self—two small children looking on—tried a lot of things from starting a money collection agency and a magazine subscription agency (needs no capital) to manufacturing little things in the kitchen. A kitchen is a great laboratory. Sold by mail, tried to, a few dozen things we finally specialized in the one developing in the best way. Today it is a nice little manufacturing business. Kept hens. Sold land and moved old house to get a little money.

"I am willing to give him some hints. Some are in this letter. What he finds out for himself, however, will do him more good."

This man's letter will be forwarded.

ANOTHER reader's letter contains this:

"His main worry is to augment his income without giving up the sure thing. Our friend must have been sold on Seattle when he bought a home there. He must know something about buying property. I would suggest that he connect with a good real estate company, possibly the one who sold him, and put in his time evenings and Sunday trying to sell homes to other people.

"He spends $4 a month for tobacco. With half this amount he could mail out 50 postcards a week, inviting such people as school teachers, policemen, public servants, etc., whose names can easily be had, to come out Sunday and see what a little home looks like.

"If he is only falling behind $240 a year, that's nothing to worry about. A few sales would put him in clover. I know quite a number of people who make more than $1,000 a year in the real estate business just working spare time, and some of them are nearly twice 28 years old.

"Hop to it, kid! You had the faith to buy Seattle. Buck up and sell it."

HERE is the gist of the advice offered by still another reader:

"As he is paying for a house he must cut down on his $180 a year clothing and wear his old clothes. Under his circumstances, $36 a year for tobacco is out of the question. Let him cut out his tobacco, thus increase his energy, and do something on the side. He should go to the library, look over various magazines and periodicals and he will find in them advertisements telling him how he can make money by getting subscriptions for them."

This same advice is offered by numbers of other readers.

NOBODY has suggested that this employe redouble his efforts to earn advancement where he is and, failing that, to try to find a better-paying job.

SIDE LINES often are lifesavers. They may prove so in this case. But for my part, I would urge that he first exert every ounce of energy and initiative to get further in his own line of work. Especially as his letter reveals a measure of intelligence which should find a market at more than the $27.50 he now receives.

I would suggest that he frankly show his boss his printed letter and also this column, talk it over and see whether he may not be given an opportunity to shoulder heavier responsibilities.

WHEREVER it is possible it is better to advance in one's own line than to take up side lines.

STOCK MARKET MOVEMENTS CONFUSED

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Confused price movements continued in today's stock market, with the day's advantage again resting on the side of those working for high prices. A sharp drop in freight car loadings and an unexpectedly large increase in crude oil production tended to cast a damper on speculative sentiment, but pools faced with the prospect of a large reinvestment demand and easy money rates for some time to come, continued their operations with confidence.

Banks called about $10,000,000 in loans during the day, but call money continued in plentiful supply at 3½ per cent. Recent withdrawals of gold for shipment to Brazil and the Argentine have passed without influence on the money market.

Selling pressure was directed chiefly against some of the pivotal industrials such as U. S. Steel common, General Motors and American Can and a few recently strong high-priced specialties such as American Tobacco, Commercial Solvents and Warren Brothers. Dupont broke below 320 and then rallied to around 327 and Houston Oil shot up from 154½ to 160 in the early afternoon.

Trading was unusually broad in character. More than 20 issues reached new high ground, the list including Adams Express, American Linseed, Archer-Daniels, General Outdoor Advertising certificates, Hupp Motor, R. H. Macy and Union Carbide.

Rails were slow in following the brisk advance in Missouri Pacific preferred, although Atchison preferred attained a new peak price. Sterling exchange touched the highest level since December, 1914.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Firm prices continued to rule the bond market today, although there were evidences of realizing in various sections of the list. Trading appeared to taper off somewhat following the brisk buying which accompanied the retirement of the Second Liberty Loan. Treasury issues again moved forward to new high territory, the 3¾s reflecting particularly brisk demand.

Dissolution of the syndicate which marketed the 6 per cent bonds of the German Central Bank for Agriculture resulted in a sharp recession in that issue, which sold as low as 93½, against the offering price of 95½ last month. French obligations resumed the firm trend interrupted in the past two or three days by profit taking.

Railway liens were somewhat sluggish, although remaining close to their year's high levels. Chesapeake 5s and Kansas City Southern 5s held steady in the face of moderately large offerings.

Pathe Exchange 7s featured the industrial group with a point advance to 88, and Continental Bag and Paper 6½s sold fractionally under their best figure. Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s were subjected to pressure after yesterday's gain. Utilities were inactive.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, (not omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollar):

1928 Automobile Prospects.

Prominent authorities in the motor trade estimate that at least 1,000,000 prospective buyers have been holding off until they had a chance to see what the new Ford model would be like. In view of this situation, men high up in the automobile business expect that the 1927 production of 3,400,000 vehicles will be substantially exceeded next year. In fact, they look for the biggest year's output on record. Previous high was in 1926 when 4,400,000 units were turned out.

Foreign Trade and Gold.

Those who take a long range view of the market regard the Commerce Department's foreign trade figures as the most important development of the week. They showed a favorable trade balance for October of $146,000,000. Offsetting this bullish influence, however, was the excess of gold exports over import of $8,000,000 for the month, following an export balance of $11,465,000 for September. The outward gold movement of the last two months, according to bankers, is a temporary condition. However, it will be the ultimate flow of gold out of the country that will end the era of easy money now enjoyed and until there is definite report of change in the movement there will be added incentive on the part of professionals to take profits on all rallies.

Capital Distributions Discounted.

Eastman, Dillon & Co., say: "The idea that many industrial corporations will capitalize surplus in advance of changes in the tax law is given wider circulation and is responsible for good buying in practically all of those high-priced shares of companies with sufficient surplus to warrant melon-cutting. In making commitments in such stocks, however, it should be kept in mind that a good part of such potential distributions has been discounted by the market. Actual announcement of recapitalization plans, it is felt, would hardly be made this year and in the meantime, technical reactions are likely. If it were not for the stock dividend talk of the moment, the market would be left rather bare of bullish incentive."

Strong Buying Lifts Local Leader

Buying of Lone Star Gas featured the trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange again today with the stock going into new high ground on the current upswing and the volume of buying exceeding any previous session since the stock ran up to its record price several weeks ago. The stock was also in demand on the New York Curb, where the price held slightly above the quotations here.

Resumption of the upturn in Lone Star Gas took place several days ago and was accompanied by reports that favorable news will be forthcoming before the end of the year. Traders are uninformed as to what developments are in progress, but there are rumors of an extra cash dividend, a capital readjustment or sale of the company's properties to another company on terms representing a considerably higher price for the shares.

Dealings were in small volume during the early hours of the session. Scattered transactions in miscellaneous manufacturing issues and oil and gas shares showed only small fractional variation from the previous session's closing levels, while bids were held very close to the market.

Standard Sanitary was unchanged on the initial sale, but yielded a small fraction on subsequent transactions. Jones & Laughlin Steel preferred was steady at 121, unchanged from the last previous prices. Arkansas Gas did not appear in the market in volume, but the price was firm at 9¼.

In the last hour there was a sharp upturn in Standard Sanitary, with bids in the market for any amount at 104 as against the earlier price of 103. Several blocks sold at the higher figure, but the available supply at that level proved to have been limited. W. W. Goldsborough was the broker on the buying side.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—The cotton market opened steady today at unchanged prices to an advance of 5 points. Early trading was comparatively quiet, with fluctuations narrow and irregular.

Bullish features in the weather news had a sustaining influence, but evidently failed to create much buying power, while there was a little Southern selling here as well as realizing by recent buyers which supplied a moderate demand within a few points of yesterday's closing quotations.

Liquidation of December contracts continued, but spot houses were again buyers of that position against sales of later deliveries.

Private cables reported selling and continental buying followed by hedging and liquidation in the Liverpool market, but a better demand for cotton cloths from India with improvement in the Shanghai situation.

Trading remained quiet later, with much of the business attributed to further evening-up of December contracts. After selling up to 19.90 at the start, January contracts eased off to 19.80 or about 5 points net lower. This dip was followed by slight rallies on covering, Liverpool and trade buying, but they were not fully maintained with the active months ruling about 3 to 6 points net lower at midday.

THIS WAGGISH WORLD

by Roy K. Moulton

NOTHING LIKE HAVING A RICH UNCLE

THE annual arithmetic lesson from Prof. Mellon's Treasu Department tells the boys and girls that they now have half-trillion dollars. This will be a pleasant surprise to man of them. In other words, the total wealth of the country that amount, even though we don't know how much it is. A any rate, the report gives us the reassuring news that Henry Ford, Tex Rickard and the bootleggers haven't yet got it all.

THE annual note of cheer from the big stone hut on Pennsylvania avenue adds, not in a boasting way, but quite ingenuously, that we now have more wealth than ever before. There have been times during the past year, particularly around the first of the month, when we have had an entirely different idea. There have been times when it seemed that the rubber on the old bankroll was growing a little loose.

If you care to go further into this tantalizing matter, the total incomes for the past fiscal year amounted to ninety billion dollars. We financial wizards and international financiers toss these insignificant sums about, verbally, as though they were hen food. Even a man who owes his last month's rent can point to this report with pride.

If Uncle Sam is a dollar chaser, as they say over there in that dear la Belle France, he is certainly the best in his line. So far as we of the hoi polloi are concerned, it is great to have a rich uncle even though some of us can't find out where he hides the old sock.

MONEY, they tell us in Europe, is not everything. This is not entirely an original remark. It seems as though we heard it when we hired out on our first job at $3 a week. Whether we ever believed it or not is nobody's business.

Ever since we read the report we have been trying to imagine just how much a half-trillion dollars is. The highest sum we have been able to visualize, in the mind's eye, is around $167.95, although there have been times when a five-dollar shinplaster has looked like a trillion.

Immediately, for the benefit of our readers, we put our expert statistician to work on the problem. He found, first, that to write the amount out on paper would require more goose-eggs than the Boston Braves made during the entire year.

It would take a doughnut factory six weeks to turn out enough ciphers to express the amount.

He started to find out just how far a half-trillion of dollars would reach if laid end to end, starting at Chicago. He got only as far as the Kansas prairie when a wind came up and blew the bank notes around to such an extent that he had to give it up.

OF COURSE, it is a little low-brow and uncultured to have so much money and we realize, also, that it is a sin and a shame. Our ideals are all wrong. But as long as we are on the wrong tack, we may as well make a good job of it. We may as well have the game as the name. So we will continue to wallow in our degradation.

On the other hand, what can we do to get rid of the dirty stuff? Over in Europe money is held in such low estimation that we don't suppose we could get any country over there to accept a cent of the uncultured lucre.

If you want to know how some of our sister nations hate money, try to get some of theirs.

BUGS BAER Says

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

THE Holland tunnel under the Hudson River solves the vehicle jam situation in New York. The newest tube is a mile long at its widest point and handled 50,000 cars the first day.

This subterranean detour is an engineer's idea of solving the traffic puzzle. He couldn't figure out what to do with all the cars so he hid them under the river.

Thanks to the tunnel, which makes New York and Jersey City a Siamese traffic congestion, you can go from the busiest section of New York City to the busiest chunk of Jersey City in five minutes.

You aren't any better off in the last place than you are in the first.

If they want to smooth out transportation they should build a longer tube. Instead of coming up in Jersey the tunnel should run right through Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio and what's next. The entrance should be in New York, but the exit should be in Arizona or even worse.

The system would enable a chauffeur to actually get somewhere in three speeds. We took the Holland scenic route the first day the tube opened. We came up for air in Jersey City, where traffic is so numerous that every traffic cop has two whistles, one for yes and one for no.

Then we came right back again in the Holland tunnel which cost $48,000,000 to build and enjoyed a nice right-of-way with only 50,000 cars in front of us.

If the tunnel came up in Arizona you could kiss your wife goodby in the morning and arrive in the west that afternoon where people wouldn't even know you were married. However, the tunnel takes the strain of traffic off the Hudson River ferry boats. Every ferry boat will solve the rear-end speech situation of next year's presidential candidates.

There is no doubt that they should have made the tunnel longer and enable people to see America. It is a fine piece of engineering, but the real scientific work will not occur until your rear tire blows out.

There is no speed limit in the tunnel because there is no speed. You can go just as fast as the guy ahead of you will allow you.

It's a pleasant way of spending a holiday afternoon listening to the backfiring of motor cars and bending your fenders into new artistic shapes.

The tunnel will pay for itself in 20 years. Which isn't fair when you figure that you must pay on your car every month.

To Be Really Progressive We Need Voting Machines

Thomas J. Cavanaugh, chief investigator of the Allegheny County Elections Association, says he plans to eliminate election frauds by fighting them ''at the source.'' There may be several methods of doing that, but one effective way is the use of voting machines.

No crooked election board is able to juggle the records of a voting machine. No crooked election board can disregard the actual number of votes cast for one candidate, give him a ''zero'' in the return sheet and augment the number of votes for a preferred candidate simply by manipulation of a pencil and an elastic conscience. There is no possibility of a tally sheet showing a number of votes in excess of the number of persons who voted. There is no possibility of one person casting more than one vote at a time.

Remove those opportunities for cheating, and the fight for clean and honest elections is more than half won. To cheat, with machine voting, it would be necessary for ''repeaters'' to go to the machine and vote more than once. That is cumbersome, compared to the pencil method—and expensive—and almost certain of detection.

Also the ''boss'' has no assurance his orders have been carried out. He doesn't know whether the cheater has cheated the public, as he is paid for doing, or the boss himself.

Pennsylvania prides itself on being a progressive state—and in most respects it is that. Its schools and institutions are second to none. Its road system is extensive and first class and is constantly being expanded. Its industries are the spinal column of the nation. Its capitol is an architectural monument, an imposing edifice of great beauty. Its mountains and valleys are poetic dreams. Its people are the salt of the earth. It is a great state. We say it boastfully and unashamed.

But—and this ''but'' is the ''weasel word'' that convicts us—Pennsylvania is in the dark ages as far as voting is concerned. It is more than 30 years behind the times, compared to its neighboring commonwealth, New York, which began to use voting machines in some cities that long ago.

Why should we continue to use a method of voting that not only is archaic, but which leaves the way clear for outrageous corruption? Every business house in the state worthy of the name has the most modern methods and devices to facilitate its business. Most homes are equipped as completely and efficiently as a modern factory. But we keep in our polling places rubbish that we would make a bonfire of if it were our individual property. Let us do that publicly.

Install modern methods! Put in voting machines.

Study This New Calendar of 13 Months—Wouldn't It Be a Big Improvement?

Seems almost shocking, doesn't it, to suggest changing such an aged and respected institution as the calendar?

Yet we might as well get used to the idea, for changed the calendar is certainly going to be sooner or later—and probably sooner. A strong movement is on foot—and making rapid headway—to abolish the antiquated and complicated calendar in favor of a much simpler one.

When you stop to consider it, there's no reason why not. Our calendar is an unscientific makeshift which has been tinkered with but not improved any to speak of since Roman times.

Julius Caesar adopted the calendar from the Egyptians—and that was also a thirteen-month arrangement, by the way. Later on another Caesar, Augustus, made some changes. Then, after several centuries, Pope Gregory revised the calendar again, and that is the one we use today.

Look at the new calendar, which is called the Cotsworth calendar, after its inventor, a famous Canadian statistician, and the adoption of which is being pushed by the International Fixed Calendar League.

There are thirteen months (with a new one, ''Sol,'' inserted between June and July), each month consisting of exactly 28 days. To even things up, an extra day without any name would be added each year, preferably on Christmas, and celebrated as a world-wide holiday. In leap year a similar nameless holiday would be observed in midsummer.

Every day would fall on the same date every year, as can be seen by glancing at the calendar. You wouldn't have to remember ''Thirty days have September, April, June and November,'' because each month would be an even 28 days; nor get a fresh calendar when January came around.

While putting a new calendar to work might appear like a big job, many well-known business leaders, commercial and other organizations see no insurmountable obstacles in the way and enthusiastically indorse the plan.

Bear in mind that the new calendar isn't just an interesting notion, but something you are likely to see become an accepted fact. Therefore it is well worth studying and thinking about.

For Sons' Hats

We print for the raccoon coat brigade taking its pleasant way through college on the paternal check book some words of Horace, the gentle poet of an ancient time, with which the boys are probably unfamiliar in these days of little Latin:

> ''If I dare venture to speak in my own praise and say that I live undefiled, innocent and dear to my friends, let me confess that I owe all this to my father. A poor man he was, and on a lean farm, yet he was not content to send me to a local school. * * * On the contrary, he had the spirit to bring me as a child to Rome. If anyone had seen my dress and the slaves that attended me he would have guessed that I was maintained by some hereditary estate. * * * As long as I keep my senses I will never he ashamed of such a father.''

So Horace, an appreciative son. Modern ones might paste Horace's tribute in their hats to remind them that they also, perhaps, have fathers who make loving sacrifices—and who would be tickled to hear them say thanks now and then.

Garrett P Serviss Says:

The Freshman Mind

I HAD with me in France and England last summer and autumn my old friend and classmate at Cornell University, Maj. Louis Livingston Seaman, of New York. We were with the American Legion at the Verdun and St. Mihiel celebration, for Maj. Seaman had war memories of those dramatic places. We were at Oxford and Cambridge and Stratford, and for two men who, three score years ago, had been freshmen together on the New World hill-top campus at Ithaca, this was a kind of golden wedding trip.

However, eating ripe red mulberries that strewed the velvet sward under John Milton's hoary mulberry tree in Christ's College yard, brought no memory of college days to us, for the Tompkins county hills in the sixties were famous only for chestnuts. But when we got back to our headquarters at Dijon the ancient ducal capital of Burgundy, there was flashed before us a scene that re-created at a stroke the morning years of college life in America.

Dijon is the seat of a famous old university and the birthplace of many of France's greatest men. The scene that arrested our attention was simple enough, though one that, as inevitably as a circus, attracts gazers and laughter. It was the era of the opening of the schools, and a hundred or two of students from the university colleges had formed a chain that precipitated itself endwise, like an immense serpent, through the streets and squares, occasionally winding through the corridors and passages of a big and crowded department store that lay handy, and all the while uttering the dulcet college yell. Two city "cops," detailed to see that no law was seriously broken, brought up the end of the procession and, having no discretion as to keeping the turbulent crowd continually in sight, they were switched through the entire circuit like the lash of a whip. The delight of the boys was to see the police sweat.

Such has always been the beginning of college life, and always will be, because college life brings the first personal independence. There youth feels its oats and if the oats have been fed to the right colt the early excesses may be tokens of future successes. I am sorry for the college-bred man who cannot recall with vivid satisfaction some great freshman lark. I assume, of course, the absence of any essential, or moral, wrongdoing.

You frequently hear persons bitterly lamenting because they could not in their youth go to college. Such persons frequently totally misunderstand the nature of college training. They say to themselves: "If I had had a chance I would have wasted no time with foolish plays, athletics, football, class rows and so on. I would have kept my nose to the grindstone."

Then you would have ground it off and had no figurehead left for life! The mind of the healthy freshman should be instinct with the spirit of play. Then his work itself will become as play, which is always the mark of an imaginative mind. I had a wise old teacher once who used to say that he could tell which of his scholars would become leaders in life. "I have observed," he said, "that it is always those who lead the snow-ball fights and tease the girls."

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Narrow-Minded?

AT TIMES you feel that you are standing alone; nobody seems to be in harmony with you.

Why is it that so few see your viewpoint?

You ask yourself that question many times a day.

You figure lack of experience on their part or possibly insufficient study on these problems that seem simple when worked out your way.

Not a sufficient brain capacity is what you secretly think.

Strange, isn't it, that you have all the grey matter and most of the world is lacking in understanding?

Your trouble is that you are out of tune, but you won't admit it. You are inelastic so you don't get the other fellow's viewpoint.

There is no reason why a person who thinks in a sensible, rational way should feel that he is without sympathizers.

Only the self-satisfied are without congenial companionship.

Get your neighbor's idea, at home and in business, compare notes before you decide that you are alone in your way of thinking.

The Rhyming Optimist

Endless Youth

EACH being has his part to play upon this whirling sphere; serene or troubled, grave or gay, find place and purpose here. For those who reap earth's great rewards the hours of toil are long; but work is sweet to mighty bards who sing a deathless song. The builders and the statesmen go on weighty tasks intent, and by their fruitage all men know not vain the toil they spent. But there are those who have no share in glory's heady cup, for them no hours of anxious care, the folks who don't grow up! They add no grandeur to this earth, seek no immortal truth, and yet they have a boundless worth, these folks of endless youth! Girt round with happiness they go, they drain joy's brimming cup, and all life's rarest pleasures blow for folks who don't grow up!

Something to Think About

By BRUNO LESSING

The Great Golf Divorce Case

THIS case came up in Chicago. Mr. sued for divorce, complaining that his children were left in the care of a maid for three days while Mrs. participated in the Women's Western Golf Association tournament.

Mrs. contended that activity in clean athletics is a worthy example for parents to set before their children. Furthermore, she claimed, wives are no longer chained to their kitchens and a mother, today, is more than a nursemaid.

Having no inside information this writer cannot say whether the angels on high roared with laughter or burst into tears.

Why did Mr. let Mrs. go to a golf tournament if he did not want her to go? Had he no control over her or were they married on an equal partnership basis without a proper provision for a disagreement?

If he had a grievance against Mrs. for leaving the children in the care of a maid for three days, why didn't he complain on the first day? Or was it merely a matter of the number of days? That, as the chorus girl said, makes it 'intrikkit.'

Now, from the standpoint of Mrs. Does golf come under the heading of "clean athletics?" It's clean enough, to be sure. The pastime of a cow, grazing in a field, couldn't be cleaner. But is it "athletics?" Or is it a game advised by the doctors for those decrepit birds whose exercise must be gentle, without straining the heart or muscles or nervous fabric? Is it "athletics" in the same sense as tennis, boxing or rowing, or does it fall into the class of croquet, checkers and tiddly-winks?

Next. Why should parents set an example in athletics of any kind before their children? Children, these days, not only take naturally to athletics but, with the shining example of Babe Ruth, Red Grange, Gene Tunney and all the galaxy of football, lacrosse, swimming, jumping, running and other stars, are more apt to overdo this tendency than to properly control it.

Does Mrs. think that Prof. Einstein should challenge George Bernard Shaw to a three-round bout to encourage their children?

As to wives no longer being chained to their kitchen. That is a fact. Mrs. said a mouthful. The condition of the average kitchen proves it. That is one of the many reasons why the average man, if he could afford it, would rather go to a first-class restaurant than eat at home. That is, if he is interested in food.

As to a mother being more than a nursemaid. Here's where this writer wants to register a kick. It isn't fair, in a divorce case or any other kind of case, to put a conundrum before the court.

LISTEN, WORLD! ELSIE ROBINSON Says: Life's Getting Better

A LOVELY girl passed down the street today. People turned to look at her a second time, delighting in her beauty. She had pale coloring, small features and an inconspicuous figure, but she was so skillfully dressed that she stamped herself on the memory of everyone who saw her.

She wore a beige coat, faintly pinkish in tint, which tied her hair, skin and eyes in a lovely harmony. The coat was so cut that the young body flowed in one supple, gentle line from neck to heel. Only one great orange chrysanthemum on her shoulder broke the coloring, tinting her lips with coral and making her pale skin glimmer like a rosy pearl.

Lovely! I wish you might have seen her. Yet 20 years ago that girl would have been considered plain and unattractive. She would have worn ugly, dull clothes, colored and cut exactly like the clothes worn by all her acquaintances—clothes which had no relationship whatever to her particular style. Her charm would have been completely obliterated in those clothes.

We've changed all that. We have learned to know our bodies in these last few years—learned how to clothe and groom ourselves so that every slightest beauty is expressed and enhanced. Our life is richer by consequence. We are becoming freed from the irritation and humiliation and bondage of ugliness. Girls who would once have been considered positively homely now have a piquant or exotic charm. Colorless girls take on an exquisite iridescence. We are freer and prouder and happier because we have learned how to make the most of our bodies.

How much more wonderful life is going to be when we have learned to make the most of our SELVES!

At present we're almost as ignorant as jungle savages of the hidden powers or charms in our own spirits. We know practically nothing of our own minds. We think uniform, silly thoughts; we adopt stupid, ugly, meaningless habits and attitudes.

WE LOOK LIKE A MILLION DOLLARS BUT WE THINK AND ACT LIKE THIRTY CENTS.

So, in spite of our fine feathers we fail to register.

Some day we will develop our personalities as we have developed our wardrobes. We will begin to think for ourselves. We will refuse to use shopworn, second-hand, unbecoming sentiments and opinions—we'll choose sentiments and opinions that REALLY express our own spirits. We will have habits that are cut to our own measure and that add to our power.

Life's going to be wonderful then, isn't it?

Why don't you start a life like that today?

New York Day by Day

by O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Dudley Field Malone is New York's most consistent gadabout. Wherever unusual things are stirring, you will see this genial, rosy-cheeked Irishman with the fringe of silver hair. An indefatigable worker, he yet manages to make almost every day of life an adventure.

One week he may be attending a Scopes trial in Tennessee, the next at the ringside of a championship prize fight, and the next playing shuffle board on the deck of a trans-Atlantic liner. He has often left his law offices in Paris to attend a Broadway first night.

And the next day be off to Palm Beach to attend a society masked ball. He is known and has friends among every strata of society. He has been on familiar terms with every President of his time and at the dock at which he alights a taxi driver will inquire: ''Where to, Mr. Malone?''

Aside from officiating at almost every prominent international divorce he has been selected as personal attorney for such celebrities as Gene Tunney, Gertrude Ederle and others. He was first to shake Tunney's hand when he won the championship. He was first to congratulate Ederle on her channel swim. And he led a band to greet Lindbergh. Almost every American who comes in conflict with French authority hunts up Malone.

For the past 10 years he has not remained in one place more than three months. In a year's time I have seen him in Miami, Los Angeles, London and Paris. He contrives, somehow, to attend to his many interests and yet be constantly on the wing.

One of his perambulating performances was a progressive dinner with a group of American friends. It began with cocktails in London, hors d'oeuvres in Paris, the entree and meat course in Berlin and wound up with coffee and cigars on a hotel verandah in Constantinople.

Malone is in his forties, but his attitude toward the world is collegiate. He is generally ready to play. And when you consider his income is reliably reported to run into six figures, his accomplishment becomes a gift.

Sidewalk hawkers of balloon ducks sell the suckers the deflated articles out of a valise—and never the windy relatives bobbing in the breeze at their feet. A buyer who went around the corner to blow up his duck could make no progress, returned to the salesman and asked him to see what he could do.

"Wot t'ell you think I do for a livin'—blow up ducks?" was the rejoinder.

Blowing up ducks is remindful of the crack of Amon Carter, the Fort Worth publisher, in Paris several years ago. He was served souffle potatoes. "I will not eat them," he informed the garcon, "until I know who blew them up."

As a frequent buyer of curb articles—I'm the bright boy who bought the duck—it is only fair to say some of the gim-cracks are of good value. A pencil sharpener purchased at the St. Louis World's Fair is still on my desk and doing good work. It cost a dime and has out-lived a dozen knives.

The novelty of the week in gate crashing is reported from a theater which ejected a man just before the rise of the curtain. It developed he had seen the show the night before and carrying several sandwiches hid in the orchestra pit to see it again. And thinking it over it sounds as though it might be a press agent plant.

The most brazen of theatrical crashing dodges is to present printed cards representing the bearer as assistant to the dramatic critic of bona fide newspapers. House managers know the real critics of important newspapers here and in other cities, but they do not know assistants. And they hesitate to offend the men who may be critics tomorrow. However, the racket has been so generously worked that wise house managers now ask the bearers if they would mind waiting until they verified the card by local or long-distance phone. If it is a fakery, the bearer quietly disappears.

The Joys of Old Age

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Fanny Ward, sixty-one years of age, has been appearing in vaudeville, looking like a flapper of sixteen.

All over the country there are beauty parlors which claim to make old people young.

Perhaps in no respect does our day differ from former times so much as in the joys of old age. Time was when a woman was old and laid on the shelf at fifty. Now at fifty she is just beginning to step out. The grandmothers are about as insistent as the flappers.

Women are realizing that after their child-bearing period has passed and their household duties have disappeared there is still much left in life for them to enjoy. The mind in many cases refuses to acknowledge the limitations of age. Queen Victoria at an advanced age took up a foreign language, and an English poet undertook the study of Dutch when he was about 70 years old.

Women, especially, nowadays, recognize that they can retain their attractiveness and vivacity in spite of time.

"These three things," says an old proverb, "are short-lived: a rainbow in the sky, an echo in the woods and woman's beauty."

The echo and the rainbow are still as short-lived as ever. Not so feminine attractiveness.

In the past, Sweet Sixteen marked the high tide of feminine pulchritude. Now the tide is setting toward "Sweet Sixty".

The improvement in the general health, the lengthening of the average life, the greater thought devoted to personal appearance account for the change.

To that list must be added that the ideas concerning what a woman can wear as she grows older have altered.

In the days of our playful grandmother the playfulness was supposed to end early and her clothes were a reflection of the idea. As she grows older she had all the choice of a street sparrow of the colors it was proper to wear.

Now she is turned loose in the pastures of the chromatic uplands.

She can flash silken, flesh-colored hose under a short dress and wear a red hat if she wants to, and no delegation from the Suppression of Bumptious Females Society visits her the next day.

We haven't the word of Mr. Babson or any of the other men who have pigeon-holed the information of the world into statistics, but it is our undying conviction that there are more middle-aged pretty women now than there ever were in the world before.

And this is all to the good.

Isn't It So?

The greater bore a man is the smaller hole he leaves behind him.

Tales That Are Told

Agreed

"ISN'T it hard," said the sentimental landlady, "to think this poor little lamb was cut down in its youth to satisfy our appetites?"

"Yes," said the sour-faced boarder, struggling with his portion, "it is tough."—Glasgow News.

A Real Sight

AN American was showing a Scotsman the Niagara Falls.

"Isn't it beautiful? Isn't it wonderful?" he said.

There was a pause, and then the Scotsman replied:

"For bonny I'll no say. As for wonderfu', I once saw a peacock at Peebles wi' a wooden leg."

Not So Sure

HAROLD'S mother was a devout follower of and believer in mental science. The two were crossing a large field one day, and when the lad saw an angry-looking bull in the distance he shielded himself behind his parent's skirts.

"Harold, I'm ashamed of you!" she told him. "Don't you know there is no such thing as pain, and that the bull can't hurt you?"

"Yes," admitted the boy, somewhat doubtfully. "I know it, and you know it, but does the bull know it?"

Pardonable Error

STEVENS was taking his small boy for a ride through the city on top of the bus.

As was only natural, the boy asked question after question about the places he saw, and Stevens answered the queries to the best of his ability.

Presently the boy pointed to a large building in the course of erection.

"Daddy," he cried, "what are all those statues up there.

"Statues, my boy?" replied his father, glancing upwards. "They aren't statues—they're bricklayers."
